Bombs pummel N. Vietnam

SAIGON — A record number of raids by U.S. warplanes over North Vietnam were reported. Officials said factories were wrecked, bridges toppled and supply trucks, barges and boats were knocked out. Among the factories was North Vietnam's only known pontoon-bridge-making facility. In Saigon, meanwhile, a senior U.S. Air Force official said the bombing campaign has paralyzed much of North Vietnam. He predicted it would "convince these people they've got to talk realistically. In Paris, the U.S. said it and South Vietnam would continue to boycott the peace talks.

Scores die in plane crash

NEW DELHI — A Japanese airliner crashed at Jaitpur, India, a village about 15 miles from New Delhi's Palam Airport. Police said more than 80 persons were feared dead. Japan Air Lines said the craft carried 76 passengers and a crew of 11. Officials seemed puzzled by the crash. They said that except for a thick dust haze that has enveloped New Delhi for three days, landing conditions were perfect. (Details on page 2.)

Shapp cuts lottery costs

HARRISBURG — Gov. Milton J. Shapp said Wednesday the cost of holding the weekly lottery drawing will come down to $1,293 from the present $2,650 starting in early July. Shapp said the weekly drawing is being modified to use local talent and Lottery Bureau personnel rather than relying on more expensive professional entertainers.

Abortion bill released

HARRISBURG — A state House committee released two bitterly-contested abortion bills Wednesday under pressure from one powerful Philadelphia Democrat. Rep. Martin P. Mullen, D-Philadelphia, chairman of the Appropriations Commission, insisted that the Health and Welfare Committee report his strict anti-abortion bill to the floor. Mullen threatened to halt negotiations on Gov. Milton J. Shapp's $3.645 billion budget until the bill got out of committee. (Earlier story, page 2)

Fugitives hunted

YARDVILLE — Authorities Wednesday threw bloodhounds into an intensive search for five alleged prison rebellion ringleaders who sawed their way to freedom from maximum security cells with contraband hacksaw blades. Prison officials also put police helicopters on standby to search for the inmates — two convicted of murder and the others of armed robbery — in wooded areas near the Yardville, N.J. Youth Correction Center. However, heavy fog delayed use of the choppers.

Mideast tempers subside

TEL AVIV — Egyptians and Israelis Wednesday sought to play down Tuesday's dogfight between their warplanes as an isolated incident which would not disrupt the Middle East cease-fire. Cairo sources, however, hinted at possible limited Egyptian retaliatory action.

Mao's health in doubt

HONG KONG — Questions about Mao's health have been sparked by a story in Hong Kong's South China Post that communist leaders there have been secretly warned to prepare "for a serious statement about the health of Chairman Mao." The paper said high Chinese Communists met secretly last week, "apparently to decide who will rule China after Chairman Mao." But China watchers in Hong Kong said they had seen or heard nothing to indicate that Mao's health had deteriorated.

Edmund Muskie . . . takes long shot chance

Muskie still hunts votes

By United Press International
Edmund S. Muskie, an admitted "long shot" for the Democratic presidential nomination, embarked Wednesday on a 10-state campaign tour, clinging to the hope that a deadlocked convention would turn to him.

Fighting the flu, Muskie left Washington to meet with convention delegates in Missouri, Utah, Oklahoma, Idaho, Montana, Arizona, Kentucky, and Louisiana. He also scheduled major speeches in Los Angeles and New Orleans.

At a news conference, Muskie named Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa as his convention manager.

Asked about his chances for the nomination, Muskie said, "I think it is a long shot," but added that if he could go to the convention with 175 or 200 votes he would be a "viable alternative."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, meanwhile denied a report in The Boston Globe that he would "not exclude the possibility" of accepting the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Kennedy said he was not a candidate for president or vice president, would not accept a draft, and, "I can't foresee any circumstances under which I would change my mind."

As Muskie renewed his campaign for the nomination, George S. McGovern inched past the 1,000 mark in delegate votes, with a majority of 1,509 needed for nomination.

The latest United Press International tabulation, including the results of the Texas state convention, showed McGovern with 1,003.75, Hubert H. Humphrey with 365.75, and George C. Wallace with 360. The number of uncommitted delegates rose to 481.3.

A McGovern delegate counter, Rick Sterns, predicted that the South Dakota senator will lock up a first-ballot nomination two weeks before the July 10 convention in Miami Beach.

Sterns said uncommitted delegates and some pledged to Muskie will start tumbling into McGovern's column after next Tuesday's New York primary.

Sterns estimated that McGovern, who spent Wednesday campaigning in New York City, would get 225 of that state's 278 delegates.

Muskie said he was traveling to "judge more accurately and precisely my role in the weeks ahead." He said his "principal objective" was to put together a ticket that can beat President Nixon.

The Maine senator and Hughes denied they were part of a stop McGovern movement. Muskie said he could not release his delegates or endorse McGovern.

DDT use banned throughout U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government banned nearly all uses of DDT Wednesday, holding that the long-lived pesticide's benefits to American agriculture were outweighed by its potential harm to the environment.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), overruled an EPA hearing examiner's recommendation in making the decision.

Agriculture accounts for nearly all DDT usage in the United States. The EPA made its ban effective Dec. 31 to give farmers time to learn safe methods of applying other pesticides that do not remain toxic and in the environment for such long periods as DDT.

Twenty-six producers of agricultural pesticides in 11 states promptly asked the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to review the decision.

The companies are located in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kansas, New Jersey and Ohio.

The Environmental Defense Fund also appealed, asking a federal court in Washington to make the ban immediate and total.

The EPA ban does not affect exports of U.S.-produced DDT. About 80 per cent of Montrose's output of the chemical goes overseas, much of it for programs to kill malaria mosquitoes.

Ruckelshaus banned DDT use in the United States except for certain crops of green peppers and onions, and on stored sweet potatoes.

He said these uses may also be barred unless farmers prove they can find no alternative for DDT. They amount to less than 1 per cent of DDT used in the United States.

Also permitted would be DDT use for public health and quarantine—in effect a standby authority since the United States presently uses little or no DDT for such purposes.

The decision was a major victory for environmentalists, whose 1970 lawsuit started the proceedings which climaxed with Wednesday's action. The ban came 10 years after publication of Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring," the book which called DDT an "elixir of death."

Ruckelshaus acknowledged that "the risk of the unknown" strongly influenced his decision.

"That risk is compounded where, as is the case with DDT, man and animals tend to accumulate and store the chemical," Ruckelshaus said in his 40-page decision.

"These facts alone constitute risks that are unjustified where apparently safer alternatives exist to achieve the same benefit."

The primary case against DDT was its persistence. It maintains its toxic qualities for years or even decades. DDT's "miracle" pesticide qualities were discovered in 1938, and the World Health Organization estimates that two-thirds of all DDT used since then remains in the environment.

Although harm to humans has not been proved, Ruckelshaus said evidence indicates the chemical may cause cancer. In addition, he said, DDT kills fish and may be hastening extinction of some wild birds by making their eggshells so thin they crack when the mother bird sits on them.

With wind and rain carrying it from farm fields, DDT has been found in arctic penguins and seals thousands of miles from its application. Absorbed by ocean plankton, it is eaten by small fish and quantities are magnified as larger fish eat the smaller ones.

Pike man wanted by FBI for murder in W. Virginia

MILFORD — A 38-year-old Milford man is being sought by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Pennsylvania State Police on charges of auto theft, armed robbery, larceny and murder.

James E. Jones is presently the subject of a nationwide search being conducted by the FBI who have warrants for his arrest on charges of kidnapping and murder.

The man is charged with kidnapping a McKinley, Va., man from a gas station in Mint Springs, Va., and driving to Martinsburg, W. Va., where he allegedly shot the abducted man.

The victim, identified as Leland Davenport, was found dead near Martinsburg along a section of Interstate Route 81.

Jones and an accomplice, Richard Aber, Jr., were previously wanted for the August 1971 robbery of a Port Jervis, N.Y. couple and the holdup of two Port Jervis policemen.

The policemen were relieved of their wallets, revolvers, car keys and portable radios. They were then handcuffed by the two assailants, all at gunpoint.

Aber later surrendered to police and was sentenced to between two and five years in prison for the crimes.

FBI agents are tracing leads in the case and believe Jones is still in the eastern United States and may very possibly be back in the Milford area or on his way.

He also faces charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Vietnam bombings to be discussed

Kissinger sets China visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger will make his fourth trip to Peking next week for talks with Premier Chou En-lai that are sure to touch on U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and President Nixon's Moscow summit meetings.

The White House said Kissinger, President Nixon's top foreign affairs strategist, will leave Washington tonight or Friday morning for five days of talks in the Chinese capital starting on Monday.

A joint announcement here and in Peking said the purpose of the Kissinger visit will be "concrete consultations with Chinese leaders to further the normalization of relations between the People's Republic of China and the United States and continue to exchange views on issues of common interests."

White House informants said Kissinger's primary objectives are to talk about Vietnam, where American bombers have struck targets extending close to China's borders, and to explain the results of Nixon's eight days of talks with Soviet leaders late last month.

These sources said the Kissinger trip has no connection with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny's journey to Hanoi.

Flood warning system called archaic

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI)—An atmospheric expert told the City Council Wednesday that officials were handicapped by a "very archaic" flood warning system when they sought to alert residents to imminent disaster.

"The flood communication (system) is very archaic," Joseph Schtal, an official of the National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration, told councilmen at a special meeting to consider Rapid City's plight.

Five days after a flash flood fed by 12 inches of rain roared out of the Black Hills through the city, the official death toll stood at 204. Horses and diggers picked their way through tangled, mud-stacked areas along Rapid Creek in a search for more victims.

A marathon broadcast of names of persons sought by relatives, friends or authorities in the chaos that followed the flood brought prompt results Wednesday. By noon, the master list of missing had been cut to 800.

Rapid City's sizeable Indian community was hard hit by the disaster and finding it particularly difficult to cope with the greatest tragedy of this generation of Sioux.

Mrs. Eva Nichols, who has spearheaded Indian relief work in western South Dakota for 40 years, said at least 50 Indians had been found dead and more than 20 were still missing. At least 60 Indian families lost their homes.

"The Indians are a gentle people," Mrs. Nichols said. "They don't understand this. They think they did something to deserve it. Many of them remain in a state of shock."

One by one, Rapid City residents were returning to their homes—if they still stood—picking up and washing off their belongings, trying to find means to drain or pump away muddy water.

Central locations were set up for the deposit of abandoned automobiles. State highway patrolmen checked license plates and attempted to find owners.

Schtal, assigned to Rapid City after the flood, told councilmen that the rains that deluged the area fell within a 50-mile radius of Pactola Dam, in the mountains about 40 miles above Rapid City's Canyon Lake Dam. Canyon Lake filled, overflowed its dam, and the dam burst.

Schtal said Mayor Don Barnett went on the air at 7 p.m., nearly five hours before the dam burst, to warn of the flood danger. The broadcasts were not as effective as they might have been, it was noted, because only two of the city's four stations stay on the air past dusk.

Barnett, after the broadcasts, went out with other city officials at 9 p.m. in a door-to-door mission to warn residents a flash flood might hit, Schtal said.

The council, after listening to his report, passed a resolution asking the National Weather Service to set up a regionwide flood warning system and to meet with the Army Corps of Engineers to take flood-prevention action.

Officials said the list of missing might never be reduced to zero. Some bodies may never be recovered. Other persons may have left the area without knowing their names were on the list.

Mullen pressures for vote

Abortion debate delays budget vote

HARRISBURG (UPI) — An angry debate over abortion legislation forced House Democrats Wednesday to abandon a plan to pass a state budget this week.

The side debate arose unexpectedly during a session which was to be devoted to considering Gov. Milton J. Shapp's proposed $3.645 budget proposal for fiscal 1972-73.

Rep. Martin P. Mullen, D-Philadelphia, chairman of the Appropriations Committee which has handled the budget, said he wanted an anti-abortion bill brought out of committee and voted.

The bill would change the current statute permitting "unlawful" abortions to prohibit all abortions performed for any reason.

The current law, which is being challenged in the courts, has been interpreted to mean that so-called "therapeutic" abortions — ones performed to save the mother's life — are legal.

Mullen's bill would make therapeutic abortions illegal.

Despite a request by Mullen to release the bill, the Health and Welfare Committee refused to send it to the floor. Sources close to the committee said members did not want such a controversial issue to come up this close to the election.

In a tightly-guarded caucus Wednesday, Mullen threatened to bring up a discharge resolution which, if passed, would force the committee to release its hold on the bill.

Although legislators refused to disclose the caucus debate, some acknowledged that it had been a "heated, personal" fight between Mullen and some others.

After nearly three hours of wrangling, the Democrats ordered the committee to release the bill. It was not known whether the committee members would comply.

The caucus vote reportedly was 74 in favor of passing a discharge resolution and about 25 against it. The vote was considered a personal victory for Mullen.

According to some legislators, the problem is not simply pro-abortion forces opposing anti-abortion ones. They explained that Mullen's bill is "so sweeping, even lawmakers who do not endorse abortion feel that he is carrying the law too far."

Mullen was known to feel that if he did not succeed in securing the vote now he might never get it. He reportedly was concerned that the Democrats might lose control of the House after the November election and his proposal would remain buried for at least another two years.

Scores killed in plane crash

JATIPUR, India (UPI)—A Japan Air Lines (JAL) DC8 jetliner making an approach for a landing crashed in the Indian desert 12 miles shy of the New Delhi airport Wednesday night, bursting into a ball of flame and setting fire to several farms. It was JAL's first fatal crash in 20 years.

A JAL spokesman in Tokyo said at least 83 of the 89 persons aboard the plane were killed in the crash. There were also reports that at least two more persons on the ground were killed.

The airline spokesman said 13 persons were pulled alive from the wreckage but seven of them died later. The six survivors including two children listed in good condition and four adults listed in critical condition.

The spokesman said only eight of the passengers were Japanese and the others were residents of other countries, including 16 Australians traveling in a group.

The airline said 37 foreigners got aboard the plane in Hong Kong, including the Australians, and 31 other foreigners boarded in Bangkok, the plane's last refueling stop before it crashed.

The cause of the crash was a mystery.

Witnesses in the village said they heard an explosion just before the four-engine jet plane caught fire and crashed into a dry river bed.

"People were still screaming when we arrived about 20 minutes after it happened," said police inspector Amichand Sharma. "The ambulances took about 13 people who were still alive. Some of them died on the way to hospitals."

The plane crashed as it was approaching Palam airport for a landing on a flight from Tokyo to London. Its last stop before New Delhi was Bangkok.

"Some of those who survived were children," said Sharma. "The ambulances worked as fast as possible to get them to hospitals. Some of the survivors will live."

The terrific impact of the crash stripped clothing from many of the victims. One man lay dead, still clutching an economic magazine he apparently had been reading just before the crash.

Economic picture bleak

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Factory production eased last month, the rise in personal income slackened and the U.S. balance of payments went further in the red, the government reported Wednesday.

The Federal Reserve Board's closely watched index of industrial production gained 0.5 per cent in May, the smallest monthly increase since March. The index, which measures the output of factories, utilities and mines, has been moving steadily upward since last fall.

The May advance was down sharply from April's 1 per cent increase, which was the biggest monthly gain since December, 1970, when the economy was rebounding from the effects of the General Motors strike.

In another report, the Commerce Department said personal income rose $1.8 billion in May, off from the $5.5 billion increase in April.

The income figures are still affected by retroactive wage settlements approved by the Pay Board. Projected at an annual rate, retroactive pay added $1 billion to the May total, $500 million less than in April.

Over-all wages and salaries rose $3 billion in May, compared to $5.1 billion in April. Smaller growth in the paychecks of workers in commodity and distributive industries accounted for the decline, while government and service industry payrolls continued to grow at the April rate.

The department also reported that the U.S. balance of payments worsened by $1.4 billion between January and March, chiefly because of an increase in overseas investments by U.S. companies.

The deficit was measured in the balance on current account and long-term capital, a report that reflects goods and services flowing in and out of the United States but excludes short-term capital movement.

Arms bill approved

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Armed Services Committee Wednesday approved a $21.3 billion defense bill that includes all of the multi-billion dollar weapon programs deemed by the administration as necessary complements to the U.S.-Soviet arms agreements.

The hawkish committee, acting on its own, also voted to hold back military personnel and military research contracts from universities and colleges which bar ROTC and military recruiters from their campuses.

Receives $2,000 for first place in contest

Milford Garden Club lauded

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — Celebrating its 35th anniversary, the Milford Garden Club must be doing something right.

At a lavish luncheon held at the Tom Quick Inn here Tuesday, the group received a $2,000 first place award in the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce's Better Community Contest held annually to promote community interest throughout the state.

But the award comes as little surprise to most in view of the fact that the club has won 12 consecutive prizes for its entries in the contest's 12-year history — a total of $9,700 that has been rechanneled back into improving the Borough of Milford.

Presenting the $2,000 check to the club for its achievement record, F. Sanford Straton of Orange and Rockland Utilities on behalf of the state chamber, congratulated the members for their community mindedness "in an era of alienation."

He also quipped the club was known in Harrisburg for the largest scrapbook, entered to illustrate their efforts.

Also on hand to celebrate with over 100 of the club's some 150 members were a substantial number of Pike County and Milford government officials, including Commissioner James Duffy and Mayor Donald Howe.

Three of the club's charter members were there as well — Mrs. James Bryce, Mrs. Ketchum Depuy and Mrs. Albert Phlanz.

Mrs. Bryce, one of the garden club's three founders, remembers how the whole thing started in her living room 35 years ago.

"There were garden clubs all around the country and we decided we'd have one too so we put a notice in the paper."

Some 30 of the club's charter members responded and the group held its first flower show, now an annual event scheduled this year for Aug. 25 and 26.

But numerous other community events have been initiated by the club since then, garnering for them the $9,700 in contest awards as well as a merit award from the Philadelphia Inquirer in that paper's Tribute to Clubwomen Contest.

The group spends over $500 each year to repaint and plant the windowboxes they have placed throughout the borough which are, in turn, filled by them with greens at Thanksgiving and strung with lights at Christmas.

Also, during their frequent "tree bees," dying trees throughout the borough are uprooted and replaced by new species — all either donated or planted at the club's expense.

A newly inaugurated tree committee is studying the condition of the borough's 1,182 street trees — many past maturity and now threatening to die at one time because of increased traffic and pollution.

The committee is compiling files on the trees' conditions and studying new species to replace them with as needed.

Considering the numerous other community events the group sponsors to raise funds for its plantings, the Milford Garden Club is passing on an impressive legacy.

West End Fair directors add tractor pull to events

By MAUREEN RUFFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — Have you ever been to a tractor pulling contest? If not, you may just want to catch this unusual event at the West End Fair this summer.

According to Chester Snyder, one of two state delegates of the National Tractor Pulling Assn., the sport is growing more and more each year, and sanctioned events are partially financed by the state.

Snyder made presentation to the West End Fair Assn. at the group's monthly meeting this week, in the hope that the directors would decide to run a pull this year. After a brief film presentation, the directors unanimously agreed to program the new event.

In his comments, Snyder suggested to the directors that tractors from anywhere be allowed to compete in the event, rather than restriction entries to residents of Monroe County.

In presenting an overview of the sport, the young tractor enthusiast said that on Friday approximately 70 tractors will be participating in a pull at the Kempton Fair.

He added that each year 40 to 50 tractors enter a pull at Auchenback's Grove in Bangor. Some purses, according to the state delegate total as much as $6,000 and $8,000.

Big draw
In trying to dismiss any apprehension on the part of the directors, Snyder told the group if they approved the event they could probably expect tractors from all over the state to compete.

He explained that normally tractors weigh in the day of the contest and are required to pull a weighted steel sleigh a distance of 300 feet.

The event is expected to take about three hours and will begin in late afternoon either on Tuesday or Saturday of the fair. A specific program will be worked up this month.

In his final comments, Snyder discussed insurance rates and stressed that snow fence should line the entire pull area to protect spectators.

"Safety pays; it doesn't cost," he said.

In other business, President Paul Everett said all information for the 1972 fair books should be given to him before Friday, June 15.

He also said Monroe Sanitation agreed to move a garbage container to the fair grounds in the near future.

The directors also discussed the need to clean out excess grass in the pond at the rear of the fair grounds. The matter will be taken care of before August.

Additional bleachers
Secretary Larry Krome presented information on securing additional bleachers for the fair grounds. To seat 3,000 people the total cost of bleachers from the American Bleacher Corporation would total approximately $20,000.

Bleachers from the United States Seating Company with seating capacity for 1,660 people would cost approximately $10,000.

One director suggested the association look into the possibility of purchasing bleachers from the Nazareth Speedway. Krome said he looked into the matter previously and they weren't for sale at that time.

The group decided to contact the speedway again to see if the bleachers could be purchased at a reasonable price. They also agreed to invite a representative from the bleacher companies to make a presentation at a later meeting.

Everett asked if any local groups had expressed an interest in running the main food stand at the fair this year. Since no organizations wanted the kitchen, a caterer, Paul Heck, was given permission to operate the stand this year.

It was also decided that powder and dressing rooms on the first floor of the fair office building would be completed before the fair in August.

Buck Hill postmaster appointed

BUCK HILL FALLS — Helen C. Bauman has been appointed postmaster at Buck Hill Falls, according to Jack B. Pentz, regional postmaster general for the eastern region of the United States Postal Service.

The appointment adds to the increasing number of postmasters named by the United States Postal Service under the non-political merit system established by the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970.

Mrs. Bauman is the wife of Robert L. F. Bauman of Mountaintown. They have four children Deborah Ann, Patricia Joyce, Robert L. F. II, and Melissa Jayne, all at home.

THANK YOU

To all our friends . . . Your kindness at this time is more deeply appreciated than any word of thanks can express, in the loss of our son and brother, Terry.

Upper Mount Bethel unit considers water authority

MOUNT BETHEL — The addition of a new member to the township's fulltime police force and discussion of a proposed water authority were the highlights of this week's meeting of the Upper Mount Bethel Board of Supervisors.

James Allebone, presently working as the township's weekend law enforcement officer, was added to the fulltime staff at a beginning salary of $5,400 per year.

Supervisor James Comunale, explaining the move, said he has long felt that the township was in need of additional police protection.

"Now we'll have 24-hour police protection and I don't need to remind the people here at this meeting of the need for it," he said.

The appointment, which is effective June 19, carries a one-year probationary period.

The possible establishment of a water authority came under extended discussion from a group of township residents present at the meeting.

Supervisor Comunale reminded the people that the authority was not being set up to take any action in regards to water service, but rather to only make recommendations as to what service could be established.

Among the various questions asked of the board were the ramifications of the establishment of such a water-servicing facility. The residents wanted to know if they would be forced to hook up their water lines to the township system.

Comunale reminded the people that this service would eventually prove more essential than a sewerage treatment facility, saying that the only function of the authority would be to "study the situation, not to build anything."

Comunale reminded the people that he would welcome their opinions and thoughts on the subject and urged them to contact him at home.

In other actions, supervisors.

— Passed an ordinance calling for fines for persons parking more than one-half hour along a 2,047 foot, specially marked area along Rt. 611 in the township. Fines would be more than $2, but not over $10, with a maximum of five days in Northampton County Jail possibly being imposed in lieu of payment.

— Passed an ordinance amending the membership of the township recreation board from five to seven members.

— Passed an ordinance ordaining the new section of Jensen Road.

Park unit ready to quit?

The Monroe County Park Commission was created for the sole purpose of providing recreation for the benefit of the Monroe County taxpayers.

It is rather unfortunate that the park commission is not living up to its mandate as set forth by the Monroe County Commissioners.

Since its existence, the Park Commission has only operated two parks in all of Monroe County. These parks are the First Ward Playground and the West End Park.

The West End Park for many years has been the pride and joy of the park commission members.

But what has happened? The commission members are trying to get rid of the park by having the West End townships of Monroe County take over the operation and maintenance of the park.

The commission, quite frankly, is trying to get rid of a several thousand dollar a year expenditure to operate the park by having the West End townships assume this cost, which the commission feels is burdensome.

The second, and only other park operated by the commission is the Third Street Playground. Here, too, the commission is trying to cut costs. The park is only open for a fraction of the year and the care and maintenance of the park has suffered greatly, although it is located in one of the areas of the county which most needs such a facility.

We question the existence of the park commission itself. What function does it serve?

We feel that a park commission should really live up to its function in providing recreational areas throughout the county, but from past experience we find that the commission has only initiated the creation of two and is trying to get rid of one.

The county has a large land area. Yet, the commission seems to be remiss in providing parks and sponsoring recreational areas where the population needs them the most.

It is time, we think, that the park commission decides whether it is going to be truly a commission for the county and begin operating parks for the county, or whether it is going to be an agency which strictly lobbies against the townships to convince them that they should create parks for their own municipalities.

McGovern tempered

Sen. George McGovern has been called a radical in many quarters, and his candidacy has been likened to that of the disastrous attempt of Sen. Barry Goldwater to wrest the White House from Democratic hands in 1964.

Nothing could be further from the truth. While Goldwater fought the Republican establishment tooth and nail for the nomination, and once it was within his grasp, exacted his measure of revenge against those who opposed his path, McGovern has used the traditional (almost conservative) approach to secure primary victories and is now willing to compromise to win an even chance at taking the top prize — the White House.

How far his compromises will extend depends upon the candidate himself, but there seems little doubt that he will be more than willing to modify his stands to the extent of pacifying if not winning outright the support of the bold-line Democrats in his bid for the presidency.

His approach, if you think about it, is not really radical. His grooming of the traditional grass-roots support certainly doesn't merit that sobriquet. In reaching for the support of the common man, he has honored the time-hallowed approach of dealing directly with the average American.

And his programs, while out of the ordinary in many respects, follow the Democratic ideal of appealing to the common man and whacking away at the "ogre" of the rich — the old "Robin Hood" syndrome.

His task now is to modify his programs to meet with the approval not only of the people, who will control the nomination, but who will be essential in the greater task of winning the November election against Richard M. Nixon.

That will take some doing. But in the process, McGovern will emerge as less of a radical candidate than as a viable alternative to the man now in the White House. And that's what we're looking for — a choice, not a standoff.

McGovern may yet give us that choice — as Eugene McCarthy failed to espouse and as Humphrey failed to do — a choice between two disparate approaches to conducting the business of the United States, but not between a radical and a conservative, or a supporter of the status quo.

The Pennsylvania Story

'Enemy' assistance

HARRISBURG — It is indeed ironical (if not somewhat farcical) that the Shapp Administration finds itself in the embarrassingly irritating posture of having to call on the "enemy" for assistance — for the second year in a row.

Or, to exaggerate for purposes of illustration, it's something like the Allies calling on North Vietnam for help in trying to knock the ears off Hanoi.

The point to be made is that last year had it not been for the support provided by anti-administration "enemy" Republicans in the Democratic dominated and controlled Legislature, there wouldn't have been enough votes to approve Gov. Milton J. Shapp record $3.1 billion spending list for the now ending 1971-72 fiscal year.

Same complexion

This year the political complexion of the Legislature has remained the same — and once again Gov. Shapp is up against the same riddle as last year: where to get the votes to clear his newest $3.6 billion spending proposal for upcoming (beginning July 1) fiscal 1972-73?

Of course, the answer once again is: administration Democrats do indeed have the horses (legislative nags, that is) to pass anything His Excellency decrees — with the exact number of 26 in the Senate and 11 more than the 102 required in the House of Representatives.

The trouble is, however, that while the administration does indeed have the horses — it has not been able to mount a real good round up; too many mustangs are kicking up their heels.

In all of this the administration is calling for a great display of "bipartisanship" again this year as it did last year in its hour of woe and what-not.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Many companies keep men in Washington to watch for opportunities to divert some of the government's multi-million-dollar spending into their corporate coffers.

Few are more able than "Knut" Knighton, fast-moving slick-talking Washington operator, who represents a Dallas-based firm called Resalab.

Knighton's pursuit of government business led him into a fast friendship with John Mercer, a $36,000-a-year official, who was in charge of the Federal Aviation Administration's air traffic control development.

The two men frequently got together at restaurants, golf courses and other social spas. Sometimes they took business trips together.

Knighton also steered his new friend into Resalab's social circle where the government official quickly became popular with the company's chairman, James Lawson, and president, George Cramer.

When Mercer needed a $10,000 loan, Lawson obligingly put him in touch with the National Bank of Commerce in Dallas. The prestigious bank gave Mercer the $10,000 without security and Resalab's Cramer and Lawson signed a guarantee for the loan.

When Mercer's wife needed airline tickets for Sarasota or San Francisco, Knighton paid for them with his credit card. The friendly Resalab man used the same credit card to pay Mercer's bills during a golfing weekend at the plush Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, Calif.

My associate Less Whitten, who has spent weeks investigating the Mercer-Knighton relationship, also turned up a $220 check made out to Mercer and signed by Knighton. It was endorsed by Mercer and his wife.

Mercer claims he merely cashed the check for Knighton and also repaid his friend in cash for the airline tickets.

The accommodating Knighton, meanwhile, arranged a trip to Dallas for Mercer's aide, Neal Blake. Knighton paid the $176 air fare with his ubiquitous credit card and housed

The enigma to many is why the yodel for bipartisanship when the administration, in theory at least, has the on-paper power to forge ahead completely on its own?

The other day Democratic House Speaker Herbert Fineman chided legislative Republicans saying "they are just looking for excuses for not giving their votes".

The answer to that is a simple: so what?

The fact is that Representative Fineman and his Democratic colleagues kept harping to voters of the Keystone State in the electoral fall of 1970 that Republicans didn't know how to run the state; that Democrats did and therefore should be put in power.

Power seat

That power seat was duly turned over to them, not only in the form of Gov. Shapp but also both chambers of the Legislature.

Actually what Democrats are doing in all their whining and wailing over their need for "enemy" Republican votes and support is demonstrating that they can't run state government after all — even when given the horses!

For some reason this simple fact seems to escape administration Democrats completely — and yet the fact is made that much more obvious each time they demand Republican support.

Internally though, what is raising the tempers of the big city Democrats accustomed to imperiously dictate what legislative Democrats are supposed to do, is the growing effectiveness of about a score of upstate rural Democratic members of the House who are refusing to bow to the ruling warlords.

Such a move is so long overdue it's pathetic; after all, there are (or at least were) other areas of the state outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Merry-go-round

FAA aide

Blake in the Resalab president's guest house. Blake tells us he later paid it all back.

All the while Knighton was assiduously courting Mercer and Blake, Resalab had a $154,000 study contract that Mercer's staff helped to administer. The company also had its eye on some juicier FAA plums, such as a multi-million dollar navigational system contract.

Ralph Nader's Aviation Consumer Action Project, which has been probing the FAA, has cooperated with us in the investigation. In a letter to FAA Administrator John Shaffer, the Nader group has charged that the Mercer case illustrates the utter failure of FAA's research programs and overall "poor procurement practices."

"It seems inevitable," declares the letter, "that some of the recent failures of the FAA were not merely the consequence of incompetency or inertia, but of fraud, undue influence and conflict of interest as well."

The FAA has now been spurred into action against Mercer and Blake. Mercer was cited by a hearing examiner for "gross indiscretion," and Blake received a private reprimand. Afterward, Mercer quietly resigned with full pension rights, but Blake is still on the payroll.

A federal grand jury is also taking testimony in the case. This may explain the silence of most of the principals. Cramer had "no comment." Knighton, Lawson and Shaffer couldn't be reached despite repeated attempts.

Mercer would speak to us only through his lawyer, James Hill, who told us: "everything John Mercer did was proper and ethical." And Resalab's lawyer, Ray Besing, insisted: "The loan to Mercer had nothing to do with any dealings of Resalab with FAA."

Footnote: The FAA has kept the Mercer file under lock and key. One participant in the proceedings confined that the secrecy isn't so much to protect the rights of Mercer as to shield even higher FAA officials from public disclosure of their management.

Thanks for ESSC fire fight

Editor, The Record:

On commencement evening there was a fire in Stroud Hall which could have resulted in great damage to an important classroom facility at East Stroudsburg State College. Were it not for the quick and effective response to the crisis the college would have been severely crippled in its operation.

May I, in behalf of the entire college community, including our board of trustees, faculty, administration and students, express our sincere thanks to all of "our men" who waged the successful fight against this fire.

I had an opportunity, personally, to watch our volunteer firemen in operation. They stand shoulder to shoulder in know-how, dedication, and ability with any professional group I have seen.

It is dedicated and selfless men such as these volunteer firemen who make this borough a nice place in which to live. Again many thanks to Chief William LaBar and to his men.

Why county police needed?

Editor, The Record:

As a very frequent guest of the Poconos, I naturally read your paper and really enjoy it, but one thing I have read quite often recently puzzles me: the talk about creating a county-wide police force and forming a consolidation of all police forces.

Now I know there is a Monroe County police reserve because in the Memorial Day parade I saw their car. When I first read about the need for a county force, I thought they no longer existed. But since you have one, why the need for another one. Wouldn't it cost a great deal of money for uniforms, cars, etc.?

As far as the consolidation of police forces is concerned, from what I see they have too much to do right now in their own towns. Consider the terrific rise in the borough taxes to pay for all the extra costs a consolidation would entail.

It seems to me there is someone or some pot of gold somewhere that is behind all these suggestions. The commissioners as well as the police chiefs should dig deeply into this matter before acting on it. When such an idea is advanced by someone not even a resident, there is a question as to why what you already have isn't used and why it is wasted.

Floods underscore Tocks need

Editor, The Record:

For the past several weeks, while driving to and from work, I kept watching the rise in the Delaware River and our local streams due to the recent heavy rains, and I kept remembering the year 1955 and the disaster we suffered because of the flood.

I don't consider myself a prophet of doom, but at times like this, history certainly can repeat itself (though I pray to God it doesn't).

If such a catastrophe should recur, and just one life lost, how would these various groups, and in particular our two county commissioners, justify their stand against the Tocks Island Dam?

I, for one, certainly would not want such a thing on my conscience. I sincerely believe if The Record would reprint some of the tragic photos of that horrible flood, it would surely raise some grave doubts among those opposed to the dam.

Certainly no reason whatsoever for opposing the dam can outweigh the possible saving of many human lives.

McGovern revisited

A strenuous effort is underway to suggest that the price tag on programs proposed by Sen. McGovern would not be all that bad. The keynote was struck by the Senator himself in his first California debate with Hubert Humphrey.

If you were in the $12-20 thousand dollar range, the Senator allowed airily, his income redistribution program might cost you an extra $21 per year. He didn't know exactly, but it would be around that. Of course, if you had a salary like those of the newsmen questioning him, you would be hit a little harder. Maybe $50 per year, something of the sort. Heh heh heh.

No one is certain what the McGovern redistribution would actually require in additional tax revenues, but two figures are kicking around. The low one has been put out by McGovern's own staff: $27 billion. A higher one comes from the staff of the Senate Finance Committee: $51 billion.

McGovern's own estimate

For the sake of argument, let's take the McGovern staff's own estimate. The arithmetic is not all that hard. There are about 20 million taxpayers in the $12-20 thousand range. Taking $21 from each of them would raise $420 million. It's a long way from that to $27 billion, let alone to $51 billion. The difference between $420 million and the low McGovern estimate of $27 billion could not be made up even if taxes were raised 100 per cent in the $20-50 thousand range. Any way you slice it, the McGovern redistribution program would require drastic tax increases, across the board, in the middle class. And all historical experience suggests that the maximum estimates are likely to be nearer the truth

Aspirin safe for heart

How many aspirin tablets can be taken in one day for arthritis?

Is there any truth to the fact that too many aspirins can affect the heart?

Mr. J.D., Okla.

Dear Mr. D.:

There is no validity to the idea that aspirin has any effect on the heart. This is pure myth, and should be emphasized as such. There is not the slightest scientific or medical basis for it.

In fact some cases of rheumatic heart disease are actually treated with large doses of salicylate, the most active ingredient in aspirin.

Occasionally, some people may have an allergic sensitivity to aspirin, even in small quantities.

Of course, when once this allergy is discovered, the drug should be avoided.

Aspirin, like any other drug, may cause toxic side effects when taken in too large a quantity. For this reason doctors carefully balance the amount of the drug they prescribe with the control of the symptoms.

It is a good medical principle to give enough of a drug to accomplish the purpose for which it is prescribed. Far too often, an inadequate amount of the drug is taken and the symptoms persist.

It is an established fact that aspirin may increase the bleeding tendency, and therefore is never prescribed directly after an operation.

The number of tablets that can be taken varies, of course, in all people, depending on their age and their weight. It is not unusual for patients to take as many as 15 five-grain tablets of aspirin a day for some forms of arthritis.

The safety of the number of tablets should be established by your doctor.

Ann Landers

Deadly scenario

Dear Ann Landers: I've noted that on occasion you print satirical "how to" columns. Since I am eminently qualified to give advice on this subject, I decided to write. My topic is How To Make Sure Your Younger Son Grows Up To Be A Mess.

1. Be disappointed that your second child wasn't a girl. After all, the first child was a boy, which pleased his father, so the second child should be a girl, so his mother will be pleased. This is what children are for.

2. Father: Devote all your time and attention to the first-born. Don't worry about ignoring the second son. I promise you his mother will make up for it.

3. Mother: Since Dad is a little tough on the second son (ignoring him and all), protect the boy as best you can. Be sure he doesn't come into contact with the cruel, hard world. A concerned mom can be a great shock absorber.

4. Father: Let your son know he's a sissy because he likes art, music and poetry. Any kid who can't bloody a few noses and be outstanding in sports should be ashamed of himself.

5. Mother: Be critical of every girl your son looks at. After all, your son deserves the best, so don't let him settle for less. A young fellow needs a mother's guidance these days. There are so many tramps around.

6. Father: Let your son know early that you consider him a failure. Compare him with his older brother frequently. If you recognize that the second boy is vastly inferior, be sure to mention it. Don't let people think you're so stupid you don't know the difference.

7. Be prepared for the unhappiness that comes with having a disturbed, maladjusted child. And have some answers ready — such as, "We can't understand it. We raised them the same way. It's something in the genes that makes some kids strange."

Born Second

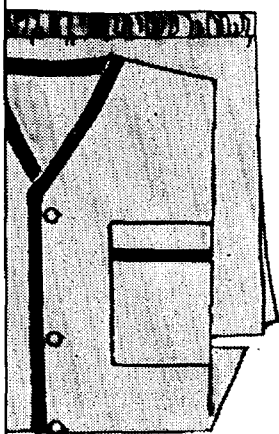

Dear Second Born: Now that you've decided where the blame lies, start working on the rest of your life. It began this morning

Dad ideas. We've got lots more where these came from.

Lynn Beck's nuptials major social event in West End

GILBERT — In one of the biggest and most elaborate weddings ever held in the area, Miss Lynn Diane Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Beck of Gilbert, became the bride of Roger Allen Burger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burger of Kunkletown R.D. 2.

The ceremony was held June 3 at 6:30 p.m. in the Salem United Church of Christ, Gilbert with Rev. Wilmer C. Mantz officiating.

It was followed by a reception for 1,100 guests held at the Trachsville Firehall with a circus tent put up to accommodate the overflow.

The church pews were marked with white bows and there were twin altar arrangements of pink gladioli and pink carnations. Ralph Rex of Lehighton sang "O Perfect Love," "I Believe," "The Wedding Prayer," "Promise Me," Mrs. Helen Bickel of Weissport, organist, played "Ave Maria," "Serenade," "On Wings of Song," "Froumlet" and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of POCONO LAKE — Miss Martha I. Kitchen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James G. Kitchen of Pocono Lake, who has just concluded her junior year at Connecticut College, has been appointed an undergraduate teaching assistant during her senior year there.

She will be teaching first and second year Russian. Miss Kitchen attended summer school in Leningrad, Russia, last summer and this year is a student for summer classes at Middlebury Russian Language School in Vermont.

ivory silk organdy with a Renaissance neckline circled with seed pearls. Appliques of pearl — embroidered ivory Alencon lace marked the tapered sleeves and empire bodice. Lattice work of pearl embroidery, and a chapel length train of silk organdy distinguished the gown designed by Priscilla of Boston.

She wore a floor length mantilla of heavily embroidered Alencon lace and carried a colonial bouquet of butterfly roses, baby's breath and coral sweetheart rosebuds.

Mrs. Llewellyn Jones of Aniston, Ala., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Earl Beers, and Mrs. Kenneth Smith, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Diane Morshinski and Miss Christina Williams.

They wore Renaissance gowns with semi-empire bodices of frosted ivory lace with jewel neckline circled by ruffled lace. Lace also formed the fitted top of the sleeves with the lower sleeves bubbling of apricot chiffon. The flowing skirts were also of apricot chiffon. They wore large-brimmed ivory picture hats with the crowns encircled with apricot silk roses and cameos at the neck. They carried gathering baskets with coral rosebuds, ivory pompons and baby's breath.

Tracey Sue Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Jones, as flower girl wore a miniature of the bridesmaids' attire.

They will reside at Kunkletown R.D. 2.

Bruce George of Palmerton R.D. 2, nephew of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Henry Burger, brother of the bridegroom; Roy Dorshimer, nephew of the bridegroom; Kenneth Smith and Earl Beers, Brothers-in-law of the bridegroom.

The men of the wedding party wore cutaway tail coats and silk top hats.

The wedding couple rode from the church to the reception in a horse and buggy decorated with white flowers. The horse is a registered standard-bred owned by the bridegroom and the buggy he inherited from his grandfather.

At the reception music was provided by The Four Dutchmen. The wedding cake was five feet long with two lighted fountains in the center and was decorated by a bride and bridegroom in a horse and buggy. The reception was catered by Newhalls of Coplay.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Piscataway High School and the Tobo-Coburn School, New York City. She is employed as a buyer of women's dresses, sportswear and coats for Hess's of Allentown.

Her husband is a graduate of Pleasant Valley High School and is employed by Paul Everett of Gilbert.

They will reside at Kunkletown R.D. 2.

Local young people part of gigantic Explo '72

READERS — Among the 100,000 young people who will be gathering in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, Tex. for "Explo '72" are 18 from the local area.

The International Student and Lay Conference on Evangelism, the more formal name for Explo '72 will be the largest training conference ever held in North America.

Dr. Billy Graham will be among the Christian leaders speaking at the conference and an outdoor Jesus Music Festival will be held June 17 with Johnny Cash and internationally known Christian singers and singing groups represented.

Conceived by Dr. William Bright, the Explo is being sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ. Randy Wittig of Henryville, a staff member of Campus Crusade at the University of Pennsylvania, is in Dallas working.

The local contingent, headed by Rev. and Mrs. Alan Taylor of the Readers United Methodist Church, flew from Philadelphia Int. Airport on Monday. Making the trip were

Hospital Auxiliary projects in big business category

PARADISE VALLEY — With the payment of another $7,000 on their pledge to the General Hospital of Monroe County, the Women's Auxiliary has given a total of $36,109 this year.

"That sum represents a lot of volunteer hours," Mrs. Elmer D. Christine, auxiliary president, told the members at their luncheon meeting Paradise Valley.

The money was raised through the Antique Show, the Charity Ball, fashion show, hospitality shop, Women's Exchange, and other special events during the year including the Christmas bazaar, geranium sale, and a new venture, pearlized flowers.

The flowers, transformed by Mrs. Jacob Hartman from old artificial flowers, are worked into arrangements by Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Harry Goldsmith and other members in Monday workshops at the Women's Exchange and are sold in the hospitality shop.

The money has been spent for items as large as an ambulance and as small as Christmas decorations at the hospital, for equipment for the physical therapy department, the pre natal clinic, the Doctor's Library and the Nurses' Home, as well as the Auxiliary's building pledge.

Mrs. Richard Kiofach reported for the major money-raising project, the coffee and hospitality shop at the hospital.

Sally Ferrebee, directing the Pocono Mountains Antique Show and Sale for her tenth year, announced plans for the show to be held Aug. 9, 10 and 11 at East Stroudsburg High School. Mrs. Edward Katz is Auxiliary chairman for the show, which is also a major money-raiser and involves the use of many volunteer members.

Mrs. Christine paid tribute to all of the volunteers and directors of the various projects.

She also announced that the annual Charity Ball would be held this year on Oct. 23 at Taminent with Mrs. Driebe Olafsson as chairman.

In addition to their financial successes, the auxiliary also added 22 new members, it was announced.

Six new directors were elected: coffee and gift shop, Eileen Brockmeir; membership, Jennie Skeldon; ways and means, Claire Parker; Woman's Exchange, Joan Place; special services, Mildred Horst; Antique Show, Ann Tolman.

They were installed by Mrs. Seldon Ponder, president-elect of the Hospital Auxiliaries of Pennsylvania. The state convention at which she will be installed will be held at Pocono Manor on Oct. 25 when the local auxiliary plans to have a good representation when one of their own members is installed.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Doing good and eating well seemed to go hand in hand this week with the Community Chest advisory board dinner at Buck Hill and the Hospital Auxiliary luncheon at Crescent Lodge with some of the same people like Ann Adelman at both.

Since Ann's husband, Walter, is this year's fund campaign chairman for the Chest and since she had to give the Women's Exchange report they were both sort of command performances.

In fact, so many of the people at both events are involved in so many phases of community work, you could find an authority on almost any subject.

Including horoscopes. When Sally Farrebee asked auxiliary members how many had read their horoscopes that morning, about half the hands went up.

I don't know how the June horoscope read for Dr. James and Martha Kitchen this year but they've had a busy one, with one daughter graduating Cum Laude from Bryn Mawr and the other scheduled to teach Russian while still an undergraduate.

And the next few weeks are going to be busy ones for everybody involved in the race festivities. Was it in May that I said "social activities are reaching their peak and are due to taper off"—heh!

Speaking of social activities, I wish I could have seen, firsthand, the West End reaction to the top hat and tails in the Burger-Beck wedding.

Young people determined to have voice at convention

By United Press International
"We're going to have about 600 young people at that convention, and no matter what goes on we're going to have a say in what happens."

The speaker is 18-year-old Sharon Rivenson of Passaic, N.J., who is headed for the Democratic National Convention in Miami July 10-15. But instead of being one of the demonstrators outside the auditorium, she will be one of the hundreds of teen-age delegates—some as young as 17—who have been chosen to help pick the Democratic presidential candidate.

They will be coming from almost every state in the union, and, as Miss Rivenson says, they reflect a new youthful commitment to national politics, boosted by the 18-year-old voting age.

Miss Rivenson, one of several 17 and 18-year-old delegates interviewed by UPI, is a sophomore majoring in political science at New York University. She is a converted McGovern supporter—four years ago she campaigned for

Sen. Eugene McCarthy. She also doesn't mind words in explaining that the young delegates "don't just want to go down and loaf around. They want to get rid of the hell that's going on. To get rid of Nixon. They can't stop McGovern. It's the voice of the people. I just want to be a part of that."

Seventeen-year-old Lynn Maden of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will be going to Miami as an alternate delegate. Like Miss Rivenson, she has been working in Democratic party politics since the 1968 campaign, and has switched from McCarthy to McGovern, explaining: "McGovern is more politically realistic."

"The Democratic Party at least has hope," she said. "As long as there are people like McGovern I'll keep working."

Susan Lancaster of Montgomery, Ala., will be 19 on June 24. She is the youngest of the Alabama Democratic delegation, having soundly defeated the vice chairman of the Alabama State Democratic Executive Committee.

She credits her strong allegiance to Gov. George Wallace as the reason she won. "I don't like McGovern's ideas on welfare reform, cutting off the national defense," she said. "I'm fairly conservative."

Paul H. Stevenson, 18, of Pittsburgh, is the youngest member of the Pennsylvania delegation. He has been a staunch Humphrey supporter for four years, and, with the help of his classmates, campaigned hard to be elected delegate.

Stevenson explained he will stick with Humphrey until he is released. "When you work that hard for someone, you have a commitment to yourself."

He also admitted he doesn't have enough money to get to Miami. "I'll hitchhike if that's the only way I can get there," he said. "I have put aside some money for college. I could use a little of that if I get stuck."

Julie Price, 18, of Bartlesville, Okla., is not only one of the youngest convention delegates, but was the second girl page appointed to the U.S. Senate. More than a year in the Senate taught Miss Price a lot about politics and she decided to try to win a spot on the state's delegate slate.

Miss Price said she is officially uncommitted. "Right now, I am just sort of trying to make a rational decision about the candidates," she said, adding that she feels she can support "either Humphrey or McGovern."

Heather Giugni, 18, of Honolulu, is the youngest member of the Hawaii delegation, but she has been active in party politics for years. Her father, Henry, is an aide to U.S. Sen. Daniel K. Inouye.

"I'm not crazy about Wallace," she said. "I'm not crazy about Humphrey. I have an open mind about this. I haven't really been impressed by any of the candidates yet."

Beth Labson, 18, of East Palo Alto, Calif., not only will be a McGovern delegate at the convention, she just won the Democratic nomination for a seat in the state Assembly.

She is also outspoken in her reasons for becoming a delegate. "I believe it was important that the people who actually supported a candidate represent him at the convention and not just the fat cats."

Miss Labson said she believes the people at the Democratic convention "will not be your typical politicians, and that represents a needed change."

"We (the young people) can bring about a needed enthusiasm to the convention," she said.

Mitchell draws $60,000 salary to head campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Committee to re-elect the President is paying John N. Mitchell an annual salary of about $60,000 to direct President Nixon's campaign, filings by the committee showed Wednesday.

Under the new campaign reporting law, committees concerned with presidential races must file periodic details of their receipts and expenditures with the General Accounting Office (GAO).

The list for May showed Mitchell, listed as campaign coordinator, down for $5,376.53 for the month. A handful of other workers received more than $2,000 for the month, and Paul W. Kayser of Washington, former executive with PepsiCo Inc., was shown for $4,810 in May.

Many others were down for $1,000 a month or more. The list also showed that Edward C. Nixon, the President's brother, from Lynnwood, Wash., is making $829 a month as director of the Citizen's Committee to Re-elect the President.

The Finance Committee to Re-elect the President said that it had cash on hand totaling $2,831,464 as of April 7, and from then through May 31 received $1,156,135. But it spent at that time $1,564,380, reducing its cash balance slightly.

The detailed list showed such campaign paraphernalia as "Nixonette skirts" for which it paid a Washington department store $11,176; $1,000 went to World Jazz Inc. for a rally; rent to the International Bank was $20,775 and the mailing list it bought from Names Unlimited in New York City cost $18,875.

The committee paid the U. S. Treasury on various occasions for "use of aircraft" and the payments were between $1,000 and $2,000 each time.

McClellan happy over victory

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Not a muscle nor a wrinkle nor a whisker moved on the 76-year-old face, and that left it up to the, shocking pink smile button pinned on his coat lapel to tell the story.

John L. McClellan was mighty happy. The senior senator from Arkansas—and the fourth-ranking member of the U. S. Senate with 30 years service—often is dour and his face usually is deadpan.

That's the way he was Wednesday. And when you asked him how he felt, he didn't say anything. He just pointed to the smile button.

The old battler who won his reputation as a rackets buster by chairing the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee to a sixth term by defeating Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., in a tough Democratic runoff by 52 to 48 per cent. He is expected easily to defeat a Republican candidate in the November elections.

"I was confident. I enjoyed it," McClellan said of the campaign against a man 39 years his junior. "I added four or five years to my life."

But his happy last hurrah was tarnished by two election night telephone calls threatening his life. He went home with three uniformed policemen and two detectives circling him.

His supporters, wearing "I'm upper crust" buttons colored red, white and blue, screamed: "The old battler did it again. The old battler did it again."

Raymond J. Lewis

EAST STROUDSBURG — Raymond J. Lewis, 68, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, died Tuesday at Lac Culotte, Quebec, Canada. He is survived by his widow, Dorothy Hammond Lewis, at home.

Lewis owned and operated the Lewis Service Center at Craigs Meadows for the past 25 years. He was a member of the Marshalls Creek Fire Co. and the F.O.E. Lodge 1106 of Stroudsburg.

He had been a lifelong resident of Monroe County, born in East Stroudsburg, the son of the late Garfield and Fannie Peters Lewis.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by one son, Gary Lewis, of Hollywood, Fla., and two granddaughters.

Private funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday in the Lanterman Funeral Home, with the Rev. William F. Wunder officiating. Burial will be in Evergreen Hill Memorial Gardens, East Stroudsburg. There will be no viewing.

Helen M. Denicker

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Helen M. Denicker, 78, of 920 Fairview Ave., Stroudsburg, died Wednesday in the General Hospital of Monroe County. She was the widow of Robert Denicker.

Born in College Point, N.Y., she was the daughter of the late John and Mary (Whalen) Kullman. She had spent most of her lifetime in the Monroe County area.

She was a member of St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, Stroudsburg, and the Aller and Rosary Society of the church.

She is survived by a son, Robert J. Denicker, of Stroudsburg; two brothers, Albert Kullman, Smithtown, Long Island, N.Y., and Howard Kullman, College Point, N.Y.; and a granddaughter.

Funeral services will be held at 9:00 a.m. Saturday from the William R. Thomas Funeral Home, 401 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, followed at 9:30 a.m. by a Mass of Resurrection at St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church.

Viewing will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Burial will be in the Gates of Heaven section of Laurelwood Cemetery.

Wyckoff, scouts head for Canada

STROUDSBURG — There are many trips unfolding locally. And with the advent of the balmy, sunny weather, the urge to travel has reached some sort of a fever pitch.

But only a few are treated to the rare experience of participating in the Wyckoff Trip.

For those people unfamiliar with this particular aspect, the trips are conducted by Ernest H. Wyckoff, a leading Stroudsburg merchant.

Wyckoff has been taking Boy and Girl Scout groups, as well as church and other civic organizations on summer trips for about 20 years. Hundreds of boys and girls, as well as adults, recall vividly their experiences on the excursions.

The new season brought together a new list of youngsters as they embarked on a fun-filled, educational-packed excursion to Boiestown, New Brunswick, Canada.

The youngsters departed Tuesday morning from Wyckoff's store enroute to Boston for their first leg of the journey. The initial stop was at Old Sturbridge Village in Massachusetts for a tour of the replica of colonial village.

Wednesday, the six boys, six girls and seven adults planned a tour of the old historic city of Boston. In particular will be visits to fish piers, docks, Old Ironsides, Paul Revere House, Old North Church, and Boston Commons.

Bangor, Me., was the evening's destination and today the group will tour Old Town Canoe Factory and then head for Boiestown, New Brunswick.

Participating in the 1972 Wyckoff Canoe Trip are Boy Scouts from Troop 87. Sponsored by First Presbyterian Church in Stroudsburg, they include Bob Hosko, Jr., Jeff Strunk, Tom Hanjls, Brian Warner, Steve Bailey, and Tim Berish.

Girl Scouts from First Presbyterian's are: Margie Ackerman, Kathy Williams, Amy Rauchenberger, Kathy

Andrews, Nancy Donovan and Linda Bush.

Managerial personnel are headed by Wyckoff, but included in the adult group also are Mrs. G. Wes Wakefield, Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, John Mitchell, Delaware Water Gap, Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Michie, Stroudsburg, and Bryan Hill, Whitehall, associate District Executive of Minsi Trails Council, B.S.A.

Miss Betty Parkerson, of New York, director of International Student Relations of Presbyterian Church of U.S., is a special guest.

Wyckoff, who has visited numerous areas throughout the U.S., Mexico and Canada, has been conducting these co-ed activities long before the Boy Scouts of America had sanctioned them. He is considered a pioneer of such trips.

He has taken groups to Florida, Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico, to Colorado and the Continental Divide and trips down the Miramichi River, Canada.

The Miramichi River event standouts. From Boiestown, the group will spend three days canoeing the river. Sidebars include fishing, sightseeing, hiking, swimming and nature study.

Housing law hurting county

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Services and repairs in Monroe County's public housing projects will suffer because of a federal housing law favoring welfare recipients, a housing authority said Wednesday.

Charles Van Seiver, director of the Monroe County Housing Authority, said his tenants may soon suffer curtailment because implementation of the Brooke Amendment passed last December.

The 156-unit public housing operation in Monroe County is among the last in the Commonwealth to implement the provision of the Brooke Amendment. It went into effect June 1.

Van Seiver said the amendment states a welfare recipient living in public housing shall not pay more than 25 per cent of his welfare check toward rent.

For the 40 relievers among the 156 total public housing tenants in Monroe County, the bill means a rent reduction.

But for the rest of those in public housing in the county, the implementation of the law may mean fewer services and reduced maintenance.

"We are not going to be put in the position of jeopardizing the financial stability of the authority," Van Seiver declared. He said all of the authority's operating costs come from rent payments. The reduction for welfare recipients will dent operating expenditures.

Van Seiver opposes the amendment for reasons not related to his budget as well. He claims the reduction for welfare recipients in public housing is grossly inequitable to welfare recipients in non-public housing.

Van Seiver said welfare recipients not in public housing will not be getting the same rent break from their private landlords.

Total welfare checks for those in the projects will not be reduced. Van Seiver said the situation is tantamount to giving his welfare tenants a bonus — not equally distributed to others on relief.

Drastic rent cut

For the average welfare tenant in the public housing developments, the amendment means a cut in rent of 50 per cent, Van Seiver said.

The authority director oversees public housing projects in four locations in Monroe County. Two are located in East Stroudsburg and one each in Stroudsburg and Stroud Township.

All but one of the 156 units is now filled. The one unit is under repair and will be filled as soon as construction is completed.

Altogether there are roughly 500 persons in the county awaiting openings in Van Seiver's projects which were built between 1955 and 1968.

Original commitments for public housing in Monroe County in 1955 included 200 units under the Public Housing Administration. According to Van Seiver, the first 100 units were up by 1958.

Then political pressure curtailed construction, according to the director. He said builders went to the county commissioners who dropped their endorsement of the projects.

Between 1958 and 1966, the authority scrapped together and additional 56 units because of housing demands for the elderly in the county.

Those demands are as strong as ever today. Three hundred of the 500 awaiting housing are elderly.

Relief not in sight

And no relief is in sight according to Van Seiver.

He said Housing and Urban Development (HUD) directed public housing authorities to link up with urban renewal projects a few years ago.

Housing projects are built on cheaper land, urban renewal projects are approved more readily and local governments are given federal credits which translate into funds if the two are joined, Van Seiver said.

Urban renewal projects are required to replace every unit of housing cleared and public housing is one means.

But urban renewal projects in Monroe County have been stymied in paper work, causing the Housing Authority to pull out.

Van Seiver said reservations for public housing in the East Stroudsburg Courtland Plaza were withdrawn in 1970 when it looked as though the project would be held up.

Now, with the Stroudsburg Stofflet Street Neighborhood development Program hanging on HUD approval, Van Seiver is in doubt about the 80 units for the elderly linked to the project.

Reservation for the 80 units was made in September of 1971. "You can't hold those reservations for ever," the director stated.

Escape artist foiled

HAWLEY — An alleged Greentown escape artist will face an arraignment here on a prison breach charge at 1 p.m. today before District Magistrate Dore James.

The man, Robert Barron, 21, worked his way through a ventilator shaft Sunday at the Pike County Jail in Milford for one day of freedom.

Barron, held on burglary charges occurring in late May, had his attempt at escape—using the same technique—thwarted the day before.

State police at the Milford barracks said Barron then fled to his parents' home in Ossining, N.Y. His parents returned him Monday.

A preliminary hearing before Magistrate James Wednesday resulted in Barron's being held over for grand jury action on the burglary charges. His original $1,000 bail was revoked, however, and he is being held with bail denied.

The burglary allegedly occurred at the Penn State Restaurant near Lake Wallenpaupack, where Barron was charged with taking a small amount of food.

As he was being taken by state police for a preliminary hearing the day of the incident, Barron bolted from Trooper Robert Bernathy and managed to elude capture for four hours.

When local authorities have settled their grievances, Barron still faces the federal government — which has charged him with desertion from the U.S. Army.

Borough's mirror stolen

EAST STROUDSBURG — After being in place to aid motorists at the intersection of Crystal and Brown Streets in East Stroudsburg for less than a week the mirror purchased by the borough is gone — stolen sometime Tuesday night.

The mirror, which was valued at $79.50, was erected to aid motorists coming from Crystal Street onto Brown Street where there is a blind spot to the left.

The borough doesn't have another to replace it so motorists will have to revert to the old method of inching out into the street.

Driver hurt in accident

STROUDSBURG — A Tanersville man is listed in "satisfactory" condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County following a one-car accident early Wednesday morning on Stroudsburg's North Ninth Street.

The man, Clifford Slosson, 50, apparently lost control of his car on the street's 300 block, struck a service pole, bounced off and met a wall. Stroudsburg Borough Police are continuing the investigation.

Slosson sustained a lacerated nose and a contusion near the left eye.

Boro seeks Stofflet grant

By A. P. CESARE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Council adopted a resolution Wednesday night to seek a $200,050 assistance grant from the state for the Stofflet Street Urban Renewal project.

In a brief business session prior to hearing a summary of the "Downtown Parking Plan Report," council voted to have the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County file for the grant.

The redevelopment authority wishes to obtain financial assistance for the Stofflet Street area from the Commonwealth and the borough's approval was one of the steps to that end.

Basically, council gave the authorization for the redevelopment authority to file an amended form of application (Form DCA-20) for the assistance.

Council approved the nomination of Arthur Jolley to the Stroudsburg Planning Commission. Two vacancies still exist on the board. Action for the approval of Dr. William Viechnicki, 600 Thomas Street, was withheld pending a study of the ward coverage as it now exists in the unit.

Council is seeking representation from each of the five wards. Dr. Bruce Dunlop openly suggested that perhaps it would be better to "appoint people who will attend."

The planning commission had to forego the past couple of meetings due to lack of quorums. Its next scheduled meeting is on June 28.

Most of the meeting was devoted to a report by planning consultant Victor Rodite. He used huge maps to pinpoint areas where additional parking sites could be available to the borough.

Rodite stressed the urgent need for "additional parking space now." Using data compiled after months of study and gained from interviews with borough residents, Rodite concluded from the utilization studies conducted "there is a critical need" for additional spaces.

At least 60 more spaces were recommended for the "eastern section" of the borough. It encompasses East Main Street from Fifth to Seventh Streets. Usage, he noted, was at 100 per cent during the month of August in that area and from 90 to 95 per cent during the month of May.

The planning consultant said the increased utilization of the downtown parking facilities is virtually constant throughout the year. But that the peaks are achieved in July and at Christmas time.

Virtually every parking facility has increased its usage — up four per cent since 1965 with off-street parking areas up a bit higher.

Downtown parking areas provide 1,363 spaces, he said, but the sector is deficient by some 3,937 parking spaces. The latter figure was based on a 5.5 spaces per 1,000 square feet as computed in most shopping centers.

Using the same plan with the ratio of three spaces per 1,000 square feet, the deficiency would hit 1,547 auto spaces.

Lottery age limit may be reduced

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The House approved legislation Wednesday which would permit 18-year-olds to buy lottery tickets. The bill passed 149-38 and was sent to the Senate. There was no debate.

It would reduce the current age minimum of 21 to 18 and eliminate the section which prohibits Revenue Department employees from buying tickets. A similar measure to reduce the age limit was introduced in the Senate Tuesday.

P.M. directors approve budget

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain School Board adopted a record $3,799,504 budget Wednesday night, to be based on a 49 mill real estate tax.

The 49 mill figure was chosen on the recommendation of David Neison, business manager. When directors proposed the budget May 10, a 50 mill tax was figured.

This year's real estate tax was 46 mills. It is expected to finance the bulk of the budget — 15 per cent higher than this year's — by bringing in some $2.3 million.

Directors split 4-3 in approval, with Warren Miller, Joseph Kuchinski and Robert Reed casting dissenting votes and James Price, Verdon Rustine, Theodore Sebring and Dr. Anthony Bolyn signifying agreement.

The real estate transfer tax will remain at one per cent, as will two five dollar per capita taxes.

For a resident with property assessed at $5,000, the three mill hike means $15 more in real estate taxes.

Nearly half of the budget increase was caused by the new high school. The district is scheduled to pay $429,000 yearly for 20 years to finance the structure, scheduled for completion in September of 1973.

The remainder of the increase is prompted by rising operation costs, reflected mainly in equipment and supplies, transportation, salaries and benefits.

Debt services, including $168,000 yearly for rental on the present high school, are set at $598,000, up from $360,650.

Instructional costs grab the largest chunk of the monies, rising to $1,918,844 from $1,795,389.

A total of $2,649,504 is expected in local revenue, including $59,000 from the per capita taxes and $75,000 from the real estate transfer tax. State subsidies are expected to rise slightly, as is the district's real estate market value.

President Judge Arlington W. Williams addresses participants in Wednesday's Flag Day ceremonies held at Courthouse Square, Stroudsburg. Judge James R. Marsh was also a principle speaker. The ceremonies were sponsored by East Stroudsburg Elks Lodge.

Ceremonies for Flag Day held in Courthouse Square

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — An overcast sky threatening rain did not deter a crowd of approximately 50 people from celebrating Flag Day Wednesday at Courthouse Square in Stroudsburg.

Flag Day ceremonies were sponsored by the East Stroudsburg Elks Lodge 319 with Stanley Gorden, exalted ruler of Elks, making the opening remarks.

Principle speakers at the gathering were Judge James R. Marsh and Judge Arlington W. Williams.

Gorden opened the ceremonies by stating that Flag Day was a time "to honor one's country and revere its achievements." Various Knights of the Elks spoke of the significance of the American flag and stated that it was symbolic of charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity.

Judge Marsh traced the history of "Old Glory" from the time George Washington commissioned Betsy Ross to design the flag up until the present day.

Marsh noted that Betsy Ross suggested the use of a star with five points instead of six, and that in 1818 the United States government officially adopted the flag as we know it today.

The thirteen stripes, representing the original thirteen colonies, have remained the same over the years with the number of stars increasing with each new additional state.

Judge Arlington Williams stated that Flag Day should be a day "to express pride, love and devotion for the flag and the nation for which it stands."

He added that disagreement over problems confronting the United States should be met by attempts to improve the government and not by destroying its constitutional foundation.

"Twice the United States has saved the world from enslavement without growth or economic gain to herself. No other nation can match such generosity. No other country affords such high living standards to her citizens. We must reaffirm our faith in our country and pledge our allegiance and loyalty," Williams said.

Church camps' director fears squatters behavior

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Two religious camps smack in the middle of Tocks Island squatter territory may never open as scheduled this summer — an act that would cause them certain bankruptcy — because camp officials fear for the children's safety.

"The squatters have determined it is their valley and those who don't do it their way had better get out," the camps' director contended Wednesday. He requested that both his name and the names of the camps not be mentioned, fearing it would cause additional threats and incidents with the squatters.

"The squatters have changed considerably in who they are, what they believe in and their attitudes toward other people. They have at times made threats against the camps and the general question now is, in light of this, can we safely operate there this summer," the director explained.

"Of course all the authorities agree we have problems, from the governor on down, but where we get hung up is whose problem is it — state or federal."

Problems began The director said the problems began back in February when the camps' manager resigned after he was threatened at gunpoint by several squatters.

"He didn't do things their way because he tried to keep them off the property. The squatters said it was their valley now," he recounted sadly.

"Recently we had a jeep parked in front of the house and its windows were blown out by a shotgun."

The incidents he cited went on and on — $4,200 in theft and vandalism that had to be absorbed by the camp two years ago, two Shawnee residents caught stealing boats from the property whose preliminary hearings have been pending since winter.

"It became quite obvious in February that the attitude of the squatters had changed," the director noted. "We tried to get people who were sympathetic to the squatters to speak to them and, what we found out is, many of the squatters are afraid of other squatters."

"We also hoped wisdom would prevail with the squatters so they just won't hassle us because we really don't have to get in each other's way."

Meanwhile, 100 children, 75 retired church members and the summer staff of an additional 100 persons are scheduled to arrive at the camps this weekend. The camps have also registered an additional 350 children for their eight-week season.

"One possibility is still to cancel the season if we determine it is unsafe to have the kids up here," the director suggested. "Of course that is bankruptcy for us since $36,000 in advance registration fees would have to be returned."

"We have also contracted for $35,000 in salaries and there is another question of food and equipment contracts. All together the church would be stuck for over $100,000."

He said only a guarantee of adequate law enforcement or the eviction of the squatters will permit the camps to open as scheduled.

Law on roads passed over plea by residents

MOUNTAINHOME — Residents beseeching post-nement couldn't stop enactment of an ordinance standardizing Barrett Township roads Wednesday as the supervisors passed the law on schedule.

Five home owners along the 758-foot Spring Lake Drive pooled resources to upgrade their road in time to be accepted by the township prior to the passage of the new standards, but their efforts were foiled by a defective deed submitted only moments prior to passage.

Adolph Benet said he and his neighbors had been "drained to the limit" trying to get the road in shape for transfer, but his deed of conveyance had no description or acknowledgment.

Township Solicitor Richard Deetz advised the supervisors not to accept the deed despite Benet's protracted argument the deed had been prepared by Atty. Michael Wetmore.

Even after a 10-minute private caucus, the supervisors could only express sympathy and deny the entreaty. If postponed, the ordinance would have to be re-advertized.

Supervisor Lloyd LaBar said it was known another group of township citizens were moving to get seven miles of road in under the wire of the new ordinance. "We can't afford to do that to the taxpayers of the township," LaBar said.

"All we ask is justice," Benet said. "We were trying to beat the deadline. We were told if we had improvements made prior to this meeting we would."

Four roads in Oakland Park did make it under the wire and were accepted prior to passage of the new black top-ping ordinance.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

WHY IS MY PUTTING SO TERRIBLE TODAY, GARY?

I THINK YOU'VE GONE A BIT STALE, TOM.

IF YOU NORMALLY STAND CLOSED, TRY STANDING OPEN

IF YOU HAVE YOUR FEET CLOSE TOGETHER, WIDEN YOUR STANCE

IF YOU TAKE THE CLUB BACK ON THE INSIDE, TAKE IT BACK ON THE OUTSIDE AND SO ON

WHEN THIS HAPPENS, IT'S A GOOD IDEA TO DO THE OPPOSITE OF WHAT YOU NORMALLY DO

THE FACT THAT YOU ARE DOING SOMETHING COMPLETELY OPPOSITE DOES SOMETHING TO YOUR MIND, AND, AFTER ALL, PUTTING IS MOSTLY IN THE MIND!

Santo caps rally as Cubs gain win

CHICAGO (UPI)—Ron Santo belted a three-run homer Wednesday to cap a six-run sixth inning rally and enable the Chicago Cubs to defeat the San Diego Padres, 12-9, in a game delayed by rain for 33 minutes.

The teams totaled 21 runs and walloped 31 hits, both National League highs this season.

Chicago's sixth-inning surge, which also included a two-run single by Rick Monday, overcame a grand-slam homer by pinchhitter Clarence Gaston in the top of the sixth which tied the score at 6-6.

A total of nine pitchers paraded ineffectively to the mound, with the victory going to Cub Starter Ferguson Jenkins, who was rocked for 11 hits in six innings. Jenkins, who was yanked after yielding singles to Derrell Thomas and Jerry Morales with none out in the seventh, raised his season's log to 8-5.

Training classes to start June 20

By RUTHE B. YOUNG
Pocono Mt. Kennel Club

I hope you'll excuse me this week if we take a break from the whelping box to talk about the obedience and show handling classes that will be starting next week.

Since its formation, one of the services offered by our non-profit club is the holding of training sessions which are open to the general public. It is the intent of PMKC to hold these classes year-round so that anyone who has a dog in need of training will be able to attend.

If your dog was too young for the last classes, or winter driving deterred you, or perhaps your child wants to train his own dog... the summer session coming up will start on Tuesday, June 20, and will run a total of 11 weeks (each Tuesday night) with 10 weeks of instruction, and an eleventh night for graduation exercises.

Graduation means lots of lovely trophies, four awarded in each class, with special trophies to the best junior handlers in each class.

Both beginning and advanced obedience courses are offered at a class fee of $25, and will be held at 6:30 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. respectively. The instructor for obedience is Dan Kerns, well-known owner, trainer, handler of "Wee Lassie," the Top Obedience Dog in 1970.

Dave Nestor, AKC-licensed professional handler, will instruct the show handling classes to be held at 8 p.m. (fee, $20).

Classes will be held outside at the Stroud Township Fire Department parking area on N. 5th St., Stroudsburg. A special obedience demonstration will be presented the first night of classes at 6 p.m. by Kerns and "Wee Lassie" to which the public is cordially invited.

If your dog is AKC registered and you will like to compete in obedience trials, these classes are an absolute must.

One caution: you must be prepared to work your dog at home between class sessions, because one thing these classes will not do is train your dog by osmosis. You cannot simply hold the other end of the lead each Tuesday night and expect Rover to absorb what's going on all by himself. For more information on these training classes, call 629-1899 or 421-3085.

Another PMKC activity which is also open to the public and again, please feel free to walk in and join us... is our monthly meeting tonite at El Toro Restaurant, N. 5th St., Stroudsburg at 7:30 p.m. Featured will be a new film by Lambert-Kay that is much in demand by dog clubs, concerning dog shows and other activities.

NEXT: Back to the whelping box and imminent labor.

Vietnam's richest province richer, happier

BEN TRE, Vietnam (UPI)—In the orchards of South Vietnam's richest province, the trees bow with bumper crops of custard apples.

More and more water buffalo are being displaced from the four-crops-a-year rice fields by newly-purchased tractors.

There are plans for a frozen sea food industry where the Mekong River flows into the sea.

And when U.S. Navy jets fly from an aircraft carrier peel off on bomb runs, people gather in the streets of this provincial capital to watch and smile.

War is still close at hand in Kien Hoa province, 50 miles south of Saigon, but not nearly as close as it has been in other times, despite the current North Vietnamese offensive.

There has been some erosion of what was once the country's most successful pacification programs, but that may be due to removal of most of the South Vietnamese regulars for duty on more active battle fronts.

Hoi Chanh (trallies) in the province's Chien Hoi (top areas) program have slowed to a trickle, but the trickle continues—only a dozen last month but half as many as in May, 1971, when the North Vietnamese were still north of the DMZ.

Under the U.S.-developed hamlet evaluation survey (HES) ratings, the number of "A" (completely secure) and "B" (virtually secure) hamlets in the province declined from 295 in April to 268 in May. And the number of "C" (secure most of the time) hamlets was reduced from 180 to 174. But there are still no hamlets rated "D" (Viet Cong controlled area) in the province.

"We may have a couple of 'V' hamlets next month," an American adviser said. "Some people are moving back into a couple of deserted fishing villages on the coast and we can't give them security immediately. "And we've got some real bad 'E' hamlets."

He said all 74 "E" hamlets were "real bad." The figure is up 26 from April.

And in comparison to other years, Kien Hoa's security problem is lessened. In October, 1968, the province had 640 hamlets, of which 358 were under Viet Cong control. In August, 1970, there were 215 Viet Cong controlled hamlets in the Mekong Delta, 124 of them in Kien Hoa.

In April, the district headquarters at Truc Giang, six miles northwest of Ben Tre, was overrun by the Viet Cong—the first time a district headquarters had ever been overrun in the province. And last week the province got its first U.S. B52 strike in more than a year.

But 35 Communists were killed in overrunning the district headquarters, seven more than the combined soldier-civilian death toll in Truc Giang. And the B52 strike plus followup tactical air strikes and ground attacks killed a total of 71 Communists. There are still believed to be

1,500 Communist soldiers in Kien Hoa, the same total as last fall. There is no sign the Viet Cong is having any success in enticing new recruits, advisers said.

However, the Viet Cong is attempting to kidnap teenage boys, some of whom are sold back to their parents for ransoms of 50,000 piasters ($120). The others are drafted into guerrilla units or used as forced laborers.

"The VC are short of money," an adviser explained. "We killed two of their tax collectors."

Those were some of the fashion points outlined by Ken O'Keefe, fashion director for the Men's Fashion Association at the annual Fall-Winter Press Preview for about 200 fashion editors from around the United States, meeting this year at the venerable Mohonk Mountain House in New Paltz, N.Y.

O'Keefe directed three fashion clinics. One on Friday on the new elegance in men's tailored clothing and including the latest trends in such accessories as shirts, ties and shoes; Clinic No. 2 on Saturday was devoted to leisure wear and No. 3 on Sunday to what the well-dressed teen-ager will wear.

For the mature man the clothing scene is more of the updated classics which began making a comeback for spring. For the teen-ager to early 20s man the change is almost revolutionary—shorter hair and neater clothes. Or as O'Keefe puts it:

"A few years ago you could tell the degree of protest a young man was involved in by how funky or unkempt his clothes were. Today he's trending toward a neater look, and I think he's given up sending messages with his clothes."

The important points in the session on men's tailored clothing was that a man this fall will find in the clothing stores a touch of nostalgia expressed in gray flannel suits and pleated pants, probably knit, neater patterns and softer fabrics, a lack of gimmickry, more dressed up leisure clothes but more casual business clothes.

"Fashion this year is playing a muted obligato—less obtrusive but far from conservative as can be seen by the bold plaids and vibrant colors," O'Keefe said.

The cut of suits has become more or less standardized in the past few seasons. The lapels and shape, and the differences are in patterns and fabrics. Plaids have regained their former popularity in everything from neckties to horse blanket plaids but there are tweedy looks, twills, checks and more solids, usually in softer fabrics.

Knits have had a big impact but their wild patterns have been toned down and there are also new stretch wovens and such fabrics as velvet, ribless corduroy and brushed denim. There is a renewed interest in soft shoulders (less or no padding) but the newest look for fall is a layered one in which a sleeveless sweater in bright designs is worn underneath the coat.

Some other highlights of men's wear include: Bold patterns and stretch fabrics in sports coats; knit and flannel blazers, overcoats just below the knee and with raglan sleeves for the first time in a year or so, trench coats the leading models in rainwear.

There is an elegant look, in formal wear with more use of velvet trim. Shirt news centers on the collar with more button downs, rounded, pin and spread collars in addition to the current four-inch point in vogue. Patterns are bolder, especially in knits, but light and white grounds are popular.

Ties remain wide and there are a lot of wide solid knits. Bow ties are suddenly back in—but who knows how long they will be. Shoes with slightly higher heels are providing more than a passing fad but the harness trimmed loafers are still the most. Tone-on-tone hose are making inroads.

The "put together" look is the big thing in leisure wear, and that merely means combinations of tops and bottoms to bring out a man's own individuality. There is a layered look here, too, with sweaters over sports shirts or another sweater, and under a sports-jacket. It is the year of the sweater and there are more varieties than ever before, with bright patterned sweaters usually worn with solid slacks or jeans.

In the teen-age show there is an end to anti-fashion, which was a fashion itself with beads, fringes and tie-dyes. This is done through new combinations of tops and bottoms. The newest pants are "baggies" which are too full to be believed and might do up to 28 inches at the bottom and have pleats.

Flannel shirts are taking the place of skinny knits. There are new bicycle looks with knitted tops in multi-stripes teamed with bike pants that have snap fastenings or traps at the cuffs.

Antique show, sale scheduled

HOPE, N.J. — The annual antique show and sale of the Hope Historical Society will be held on July 7-8 at the Hope Community Center, Hope, Warren County, N.J.

The event will be held from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on July 7, and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. July 8.

A spokesman for the show said many well-known exhibitors from surrounding states will offer a well diversified display ranging from 18th Century Primitives to Art Nouveau, including bottles, postcards, silver, lamps, guns, jewelry, furniture, implements of wood and iron, china, glass, coins, dolls and memorabilia of interest to the connoisseur and amateur collector.

The Village of Hope, at the foot of Jenny Jump Mountain, settled by the Moravians in 1789, prizes the architecture of these craftsmen in the existing community.

The society's Historical Museum, adjacent to the old stone bridge which crosses Beaver Brook, will be open both days for the show.

Man in gray flannel suit is back — but with changes

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (UPI)—The man in the gray flannel suit is back but this time he may be wearing it with a brilliant Argyle sweater. If he is on a weekend he would be wearing a put-together. His teen-age son might be wearing a suit too but it probably would be denim or velvet. Those were some of the fashion points outlined by Ken O'Keefe, fashion director for the Men's Fashion Association at the annual Fall-Winter Press Preview for about 200 fashion editors from around the United States, meeting this year at the venerable Mohonk Mountain House in New Paltz, N.Y.

Antique show, sale scheduled

HOPE, N.J. — The annual antique show and sale of the Hope Historical Society will be held on July 7-8 at the Hope Community Center, Hope, Warren County, N.J.

The event will be held from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on July 7, and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. July 8.

A spokesman for the show said many well-known exhibitors from surrounding states will offer a well diversified display ranging from 18th Century Primitives to Art Nouveau, including bottles, postcards, silver, lamps, guns, jewelry, furniture, implements of wood and iron, china, glass, coins, dolls and memorabilia of interest to the connoisseur and amateur collector.

The Village of Hope, at the foot of Jenny Jump Mountain, settled by the Moravians in 1789, prizes the architecture of these craftsmen in the existing community.

The society's Historical Museum, adjacent to the old stone bridge which crosses Beaver Brook, will be open both days for the show.

Man in gray flannel suit is back — but with changes

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (UPI)—The man in the gray flannel suit is back but this time he may be wearing it with a brilliant Argyle sweater. If he is on a weekend he would be wearing a put-together. His teen-age son might be wearing a suit too but it probably would be denim or velvet. Those were some of the fashion points outlined by Ken O'Keefe, fashion director for the Men's Fashion Association at the annual Fall-Winter Press Preview for about 200 fashion editors from around the United States, meeting this year at the venerable Mohonk Mountain House in New Paltz, N.Y.

O'Keefe directed three fashion clinics. One on Friday on the new elegance in men's tailored clothing and including the latest trends in such accessories as shirts, ties and shoes; Clinic No. 2 on Saturday was devoted to leisure wear and No. 3 on Sunday to what the well-dressed teen-ager will wear.

For the mature man the clothing scene is more of the updated classics which began making a comeback for spring. For the teen-ager to early 20s man the change is almost revolutionary—shorter hair and neater clothes. Or as O'Keefe puts it:

"A few years ago you could tell the degree of protest a young man was involved in by how funky or unkempt his clothes were. Today he's trending toward a neater look, and I think he's given up sending messages with his clothes."

The important points in the session on men's tailored clothing was that a man this fall will find in the clothing stores a touch of nostalgia expressed in gray flannel suits and pleated pants, probably knit, neater patterns and softer fabrics, a lack of gimmickry, more dressed up leisure clothes but more casual business clothes.

"Fashion this year is playing a muted obligato—less obtrusive but far from conservative

as can be seen by the bold plaids and vibrant colors," O'Keefe said.

The cut of suits has become more or less standardized in the past few seasons. The lapels and shape, and the differences are in patterns and fabrics. Plaids have regained their former popularity in everything from neckties to horse blanket plaids but there are tweedy looks, twills, checks and more solids, usually in softer fabrics.

Knits have had a big impact but their wild patterns have been toned down and there are also new stretch wovens and such fabrics as velvet, ribless corduroy and brushed denim. There is a renewed interest in soft shoulders (less or no padding) but the newest look for fall is a layered one in which a sleeveless sweater in bright designs is worn underneath the coat.

Some other highlights of men's wear include: Bold patterns and stretch fabrics in sports coats; knit and flannel blazers, overcoats just below the knee and with raglan sleeves for the first time in a year or so, trench coats the leading models in rainwear.

There is an elegant look, in formal wear with more use of velvet trim. Shirt news centers on the collar with more button downs, rounded, pin and spread collars in addition to the current four-inch point in vogue. Patterns are bolder, especially in knits, but light and white grounds are popular.

Ties remain wide and there are a lot of wide solid knits. Bow ties are suddenly back in—but who knows how long they will be. Shoes with slightly higher heels are providing more than a passing fad but the harness trimmed loafers are still the most. Tone-on-tone hose are making inroads.

The "put together" look is the big thing in leisure wear, and that merely means combinations of tops and bottoms to bring out a man's own individuality. There is a layered look here, too, with sweaters over sports shirts or another sweater, and under a sports-jacket. It is the year of the sweater and there are more varieties than ever before, with bright patterned sweaters usually worn with solid slacks or jeans.

In the teen-age show there is an end to anti-fashion, which was a fashion itself with beads, fringes and tie-dyes. This is done through new combinations of tops and bottoms. The newest pants are "baggies" which are too full to be believed and might do up to 28 inches at the bottom and have pleats.

Flannel shirts are taking the place of skinny knits. There are new bicycle looks with knitted tops in multi-stripes teamed with bike pants that have snap fastenings or traps at the cuffs.

Saddest all week

The saddest thing I have read all week is an editorial in a school newspaper by a young girl who deplored the Saturday morning cartoons of the 50s and 60s.

She noted with disgust that every weekend, people used to spend wasted hours hanging over a bowl of Cheerios watching Hekyll and Jekyll, Wylie Coyote, Top Cat and Mighty Mouse.

"Bullwinkle and Rocky, the flying squirrel, were a couple of bunglers," she wrote, "who kept busy out-maneuvering Boris and Natasha and their phony Russian accents. Hereos were insects like Atom Ant, Flicka and Tom Terrific and his wonder dog. Did TV executives doubt our intelligence level back then?" she asked. "Did they think there was something challenging or thought-provoking about Yogi Bear and Boo-Boo? They did nothing to raise our intellectual consciousness. Maybe in the future we will progress from the level which we knew."

Well, you've progressed. The future is today and all the animals have grown up. The funny little cat who used to get outsmarted by mice and was always smoking a loaded cigar has been replaced by Fritz the Cat. Unfortunately, you can't see Fritz. He's X-rated. (The first X-rated cartoon ever.)

Mighty Mouse no longer changes clothes in the sewer and emerges to save towns anymore. His name is Ben and he attacks and kills on command of Willard. The talking frogs of Disney's world are no longer gentle baritones singing three-part harmony. They too are leading men on the silver screen snacking on human flesh. And, lest we forget the newest star, a vicious snake called Stanley who proves once again that evil triumphs over good.

Our cartoons today are certainly thought-provoking. Remember when you opened the pages of a book and Spot was chasing a stick? Today's animals have meaning. In a gentle spoof of children's books, Martin Levin in the Saturday Review posed the likely story of Willy, a guppy who was the only boy in a family of 14,000 children. His father was swallowed by his mother and the story tells how Willy manages to grow up in a large family of females with developing homosexual tendencies.

Do me a favor, child. Don't worry about my intellectual consciousness. Already I have been raised to such glorious heights that I may be sick to my stomach. If I am to spend my life in this world (which is sometimes less than perfect), let it be with a porpoise who is smarter than my kids, Gentle Ben, a live-in bear, and an eagle who gets airsick. Leave me something less than real and more than fantasy.

As for challenges. It's enough for me to wonder if Lassie is going to make it over that fence every week.

Bibi Osterwald of "Where the Heart Is" on the CBS Television Network worked two years on television as comedy foil for Red Buttons and one year with Imogene Coca.

Graft gripe

MANILA (UPI) — An associate justice of the Philippines' supreme court laments what he calls "rampant dishonesty in our government today." Justice Calixto Zaldivar in a speech said former leaders were poor because they were dedicated and honest, while today's bureaucrats become rich during their incumbency.

German families

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI) — There were about 22 million families living in West Germany in 1970, according to figures just released by the Federal Office of statistics. The agency said this was an increase of about 16 per cent since surveys were made in 1957. It said the rate of family growth was faster than that of population growth.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rose sharply Wednesday as traders bought heavily into the glamors, electronics and computers. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was active.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks ran up 8.50 to 946.79. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index advanced 0.84 to 100.38. The average price of a common share increased by 33 cents.

Advances topped declines, 895 to 541. Among 1,770 issues crossing the tape, turnover amounted to 18,320,000 shares, up sharply from the 15,710,000 traded Tuesday.

Although the gain was sharp on some averages, it was not broad, as indicated by the large number of declines. "Much of the gain came from some professionals covering recent short sales," said Monte Gordon, analyst for Sartorius & Co. "It will take a couple of days to determine if the rally will last. I kind of doubt it," Gordon said.

"The action was concentrated in a narrow range—among the glamors and high multiple stocks," Gordon said. "Investors are putting their money in well-tried stocks."

Harry Laubscher, analyst for Walston & Co., also said he did not think the rally would last. He said many traders actually have begun to sell into the rally and "I think eventually we're going to test our lows for the year."

Wheelabrator-Frye was the most active issue, up 1/2 to 10 on 626,400 shares. The issue has been active all week. Company officials have said they believe the firm will be a leader in the environmental protection industry.

UAL Inc. was second, off 3/4 at 42 1/2 on 307,800 shares, and Continental Airlines third, off 1/2 at 23 1/2 on 258,800 shares, including a block of 219,500 shares at 23.

In addition to UAL and Continental in the airlines, TWA lost 1 1/2 and American Airlines 1 1/2. The group has been under profit-taking pressure recently.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Many plays by declarer are based on information he obtains from either the opponents' bidding or the type of defense they adopt.

To place so much credence on information volunteered by the enemy may seem odd, but it is nevertheless generally sound to proceed on the basis that they are doing their level best to portray their holdings accurately to each other so as to achieve the best possible result.

Consider this situation where South is in four spades doubled and the defense starts with three rounds of diamonds followed by three rounds of hearts. Declarer ruffs, cashes the ace of spades, plays a club to the king, and leads a trump from dummy, East following low.

South must now resolve the question of whether to finesse or go up with the king. He is already down two — 500 points — and wants to avoid the 800 number.

In general, missing four to the queen, one plays for the drop by cashing the A-K instead of attempting the finesse. However, the mathematical advantage is so slight that one should feel free to make-use of any and all clues that indicate otherwise.

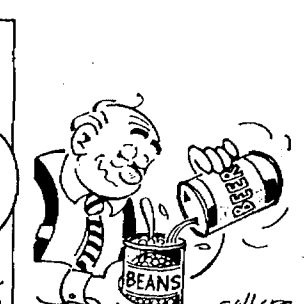

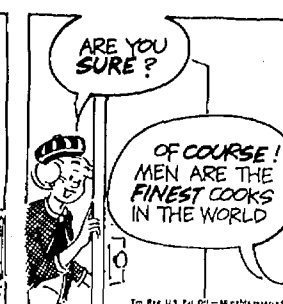

Here, there is good reason to finesse. If you trust the opponents' bidding, you must assume that their spades are divided 3-1, not 2-2.

In effect you say to yourself that the opponents would not voluntarily have bid four hearts if they had four quick losers in spades and clubs.

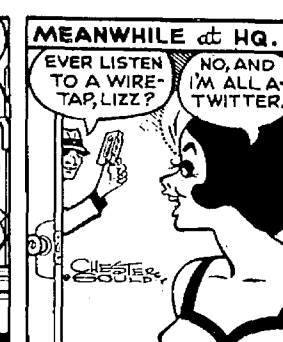

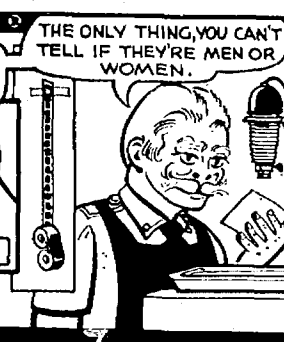

Of course it is possible that they did, — nobody bids perfectly — but there is a strong presumption that they did not bid themselves into a hopeless game. From this it follows that the spades are unlikely to be divided 2-2 and that finessing against the queen is the right thing to do.

Lead poisoning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plumbism — lead poisoning — often results when children eat paint chips peeling off walls and ceilings of dilapidated housing. Sometimes children get plumbism when they chew on toys covered with a lead-based paint. Plumbism can cause brain damage and death. To help prevent it, Uncle Sam's out with regulations prohibiting the use of lead-based paints in residential structures that are wholly or partially financed by the Federal government.

Harris poll reveals many Americans think 'recession'

By LOUIS HARRIS

Despite encouraging signs from the economy lately, a plurality of the American people still believe, by 48-37 per cent, that "the country is in a recession." And a majority express the view that the pace of inflation is faster than a year ago this time.

One key to the continuing lack of public confidence is criticism of the actions of the Federal Price Commission and the Pay Board in granting price and wage increases.

A substantial 59 per cent feel that the Price Commission is giving "too many price increases," compared with only three per cent who feel the Commission is granting "too few." Back in March, the critics of the Price Commission were a smaller majority by five percentage points.

Nearly half the public, 47 per cent, and 44 per cent of union labor, believes that there have been "too many pay increases" allowed by the Pay Board. This is four percentage points higher than in March.

Fifty-five per cent of the American people feel that the prices of most things they pay for are still rising faster than a year ago, despite the economic indicators which have shown a leveling out of the rate of inflation. A cross section of 1,385 families were recently asked by the Harris Survey:

"Do you feel the prices of most things you buy are rising more rapidly than a year ago, about as rapidly as they were then, less rapidly than a year ago, or are they going down?"

TREND OF CONSUMER PRICES

| | Up Faster | Up as Fast | Up Less Fast | Going Down | Not Sure |
|----------------|--------------|---------------|-----------------|---------------|-------------|
| May, 1972 | 55 | 31 | 11 | 1 | 2 |
| March | 59 | 28 | 11 | 1 | 2 |
| January | 47 | 33 | 16 | 1 | 3 |
| November, 1971 | 45 | 34 | 16 | 1 | 4 |
| October | 60 | 26 | 11 | 1 | 3 |

| June | 70 | 24 | 5 | 1 | 1 |
| May | 72 | 20 | 6 | 1 | 2 |

| | | | | |
|---------|----|----|---|---|
| March | 73 | 22 | 4 | 1 |
| January | 65 | 28 | 5 | 2 |

Although not nearly as many persons feel the press of inflation today as did a year ago, nonetheless the fact that a majority still believe that prices are rising more rapidly than in 1971 indicates a deep public concern over the cost of living. Past experience has indicated that it usually takes between four to six months for the public's thinking on prices to catch up with such barometers as the Consumer Price Index.

To measure the psychological impact of unemployment, the Harris Survey has periodically asked cross sections of the nation's households: "Compared to a year ago, do you feel the number of people unemployed around here has increased, decreased, or stayed about the same?"

PERCEIVED UNEMPLOYMENT

| | Going Up | Going Down | Same | Not Sure |

| May | 65 | 4 | 25 | 6 |
| March | 62 | 4 | 29 | 5 |
| January | 62 | 5 | 27 | 6 |

Although the number who believe unemployment is still increasing has declined from 70 per cent a year ago to 41 per cent today, four out of 10 is a substantial number. Federal statistics indicate little change in the percentage of unemployment in the past year.

Despite the continuing unwillingness of the public to acknowledge that the economy is improving substantially, nonetheless a plurality still maintain confidence in the basic approach President Nixon has taken:

"Do you feel the economic policies of the Nixon Administration are doing more good than harm or more harm than good?"

Teen Forum

Don't tease

YES OR NO: (Comment) Girls write you to ask if they should "give in" to their boy friends or, more frequently, to say they have done so. They give various reasons.

This is the opinion of a male, age 19. Since the male is the "aggressor," he must decide whether the "move" should be made. Sometimes he makes the "move" because he feels that this is what his girl friend wants and so he must "give in" to her wishes.

At this point what happens is up to the girl. If she "gives in" just to please him (and not herself) then what happens is meaningless.

If she rejects him totally then she may be judging him guilty of an offense for which she really shares some of the guilt.

But the worst thing she can do to him is to "play along" and then reject him at the last moment — hurting him deeply when he finds out that what he thought was true feeling in her was not.

In any case, the important thing is communication. If a boy and girl can truly communicate, then the problems I stated here will not arise. But, communication is better late than never.

Thinker in Pennsylvania

(A.) Thank you for your thoughts. They are quite deep for 19.

Some boys and girls grow up, date, get married, have children and die without ever being able to really talk about what you are talking about. That is sad.

Perhaps your letter will help some of them to talk about it more freely and in talking to avoid some pitfalls.

But regardless, what happens or doesn't happen in the situation you discuss, no matter what the reason, is not meaningless.

WHY? (Q.) I was going out with this boy and thought we were getting along great when for some reason I don't know he just stopped coming around.

He still tells my friends he likes me and wants to go out with me again.

What do I do to get him to ask me out again? I love him a lot.

Abandoned in Oklahoma

(A.) There is some reason he quit seeing you. Your friends don't seem to know. You don't know. That leaves the boy himself. Ask him. Before you ask, tell him you miss him.

If he has some misunderstanding about how you feel about him, your action will open the way for him to ask you out again.

FIRST: (Q.) I am 13. I have a girl friend. She is my first one. She is very nice. But we still don't talk to each other much. When should I start taking her out?

Just Starting in Pennsylvania

(A.) Not yet. You are at the age to get acquainted at home, at school, in telephone visits, and at chaperoned parties. But not out by yourselves on dates.

Don't worry about the difficulty of talking. It will be easier as you get to know each other better.

1972 presidential campaign examined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund Muskie's pointed advice to Sen. George McGovern that he "reexamine and refine" his positions on a number of thorny public issues signals a new phase in the 1972 presidential campaign.

With all but one—New York—of the presidential primaries over, the campaign now turns from what largely was a battle of personalities to focus on their approach to problems facing the nation.

Muskie, in refusing to climb aboard the McGovern bandwagon nine days ago, told McGovern he must find areas of agreement with the Democrats he has been battling since last March if he wants to unify the party for the November campaign against President Nixon.

On some issues, such as the Vietnam War, the principal surviving Democratic candidates—McGovern, Muskie, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Gov. George C. Wallace—are not far apart. But on others, including tax and welfare reform, there remains a chasm between the front-runner and his challengers.

To illustrate the differences and similarities, United Press International asked the four leaders to outline their positions on Vietnam, taxes, welfare, crime and drugs and spending priorities.

Some of the candidates were specific, some gave generalized answers, but the differences Muskie discussed in refusing to give up the race are clear.

income regardless of their deductions and exemptions. He also would impose an inheritance tax rate of 77 per cent on estates of $500,000 or more. That rate level now applies on inheritances of $10 million or more.

These changes allegedly would increase revenues about $29 billion a year, much of which would be redistributed to the poor through McGovern's welfare plan.

Wallace—Wallace says the average worker thinks he pays only about 20 per cent of his income in taxes, but the figure actually is nearly 50 per cent. He would eliminate exemptions for family foundations and trusts, saying if "the super rich elite" would pay "the same share of the tax load as the working class, we could then cut income taxes on everyone in America." He also accuses "many of the churches" of "financing the activities of avowed revolutionaries," and says their income on businesses and business properties—not church buildings, hospitals and schools—should be taxed. He gives no figures for the amount of revenues that could be raised or the possible tax cuts the added collections would permit.

Muskie—Muskie has sponsored a tax reform program designed to collect an additional $14 billion by reducing the oil depletion allowance, partially repealing the capital gains tax and ending the exemption on the interest paid by state and local bonds.

Humphrey—Humphrey also is supporting tax reform through elimination of tax deductions and exemptions, saying: "The time has come to say to the super rich, to the giant oil companies, to the millionaires who squeeze through tax loopholes, 'You must pay your fair share.'" The bill he supports, sponsored by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., purportedly would raise $16 billion to be passed on to localities for easing property tax burdens by as much as 30 per cent.

Vietnam

Humphrey—"It is clear now and clearer every day that the United States must make known that its military commitment to South Vietnam is coming to an end." Humphrey says the United States should use the United Nations and "any other conceivable diplomatic initiative" to get a Vietnam ceasefire. He opposed the harbor mining as "fraught with uncertainties and unbelievable dangers" and objected to "bombing for reprisal." He opposed cutting off funds for the war without the release, or agreement on release, of prisoners of war and accounting for Americans missing in action.

Wallace—"If people like myself had our way, it would have been over with. We said get it over with conventional weapons, years ago—and if a determination is made that we cannot win it militarily, then get out because we cannot afford to hang around 10 years in a no-win war in Asia, killing American servicemen every week. It tears this country up, it helps the Soviet Union and Red China."

Muskie—"We must set a date certain for withdrawal of all our troops from Vietnam. We must negotiate for the return of our prisoners. We must work to make possible a peaceful settlement by the people of that area. And we must be prepared to give economic aid to heal the wounds of war." He has supported "end the war" amendments in the Senate and opposed Nixon's demand for a ceasefire as a condition for withdrawal.

McGovern—"The war is clearly immoral and unwise. Its pursuit is unrelated to any reality of national interest; and those who conduct it scarcely bother to assert any rational basis for its continuation. And now, the war clearly lost, we continue to fight and slaughter, to expend our resources and vitality, as if we were trying to prove how high a price we will pay for their victory. That is not realism or pragmatism; it is the ultimate and dangerous romanticism of the ostrich." McGovern said "the first order of business" he would have as President would be to end the war, setting a deadline "for the complete withdrawal of all American forces, lock, stock and barrel."

Welfare

Muskie—"We must design a welfare system which provides support for those who cannot help themselves. I believe such a bill should provide a minimum level of federal support for all the needy. The originally proposed level of income support (in Nixon's Family Assistance Plan) may now be insufficient due to inflationary pressures. A minimum income level would always be subject to revision as price levels change."

Wallace—Wallace emphasizes assistance to the elderly, calling for an immediate increase in social security benefits with the goal of a 60 per cent increase; higher minimum payments with cost of living increases; full tax deduction for drugs and medical expenses for persons aged 62 or older; removal of earning limits on persons 62 or older. He wants to give senior citizens "dignity, prestige, self-respect, independence and security without intrusion into their private lives by federal bureaucrats and guideline writers."

McGovern—"His 'income distribution plan' would combine a federal 'minimum income grant' with the principles of the negative income tax. All persons would get the grant and those with income below the poverty level would keep it. Those with incomes between the poverty line and $12,000 a year for a family of four would retain an amount that would become less as earned income rose. Above the $12,000 'break-even' point, taxes would take more from the person than the grant would provide. McGovern estimates the plan would collect $43 billion yearly from those above the break-even point and distribute it to both the unemployed and working poor. He says the plan would be paid for by savings on current welfare costs, added revenues from elimination of personal tax exemptions, and higher taxes on upper income citizens."

Humphrey—Humphrey has suggested a liberalized Family Assistance Plan, with continued food stamp and commodity programs, cash assistance of $3,600 a year for a family of four, with provision for increasing the minimums to an "adequate" level at or above the poverty line; coverage of all poor persons, not just families; a deduction from welfare payments of 50 cents rather than 67 cents on each earned dollar; provision for day care centers for the children of working mothers; public service employment enough to provide jobs for all who want them; and a requirement that states at least maintain their current level of benefits if federal payments are lower. His program would cost an estimated $15.8 billion a year.

Crime and Drugs

Muskie—"We need an all-out attack on crime in America, and that means more policemen with better training and equipment and reform in our courts and our prisons. We need a special new program to protect the elderly, to put special police patrols in their neighborhoods, and to indemnify the aged for losses they suffer from crime."

McGovern—McGovern has proposed establishment of a Presidential Advisory Commission on Organized Interstate Crime; a program of about $1.5 billion to intensify local, state and federal efforts against drug violations, with emphasis on large-scale dealers; increased penalties for use of firearms in criminal acts and a new effort against juvenile delinquency. He favors easing the penalty for marijuana use from a felony to a misdemeanor, but increasing penalties against hard drug pushing. He also would support research to find hard drug substitutes and detoxification agents.

Humphrey—He opposes legalization of marijuana, but backs lesser penalties for possession of small quantities and more research into the effects of marijuana. He calls for shutting off, with the aid of other governments, shipment of heroin into this country and while recognizing methadone maintenance as one treatment for heroin addiction, opposes it as the exclusive method to be used.

Wallace—He calls for "laying down the law" to other countries that permit shipment of drugs into this country and says the problem could be eased "if we just put all the Justice Department officials who have been working on school busing cases onto narcotics." Wallace calls for support of law enforcement officers at every level and freeing them from unreasonable restraints of courts. He advocates new legislation to crack down on organized crime; proposes increased emphasis on control of juvenile delinquency; and pledges stern action against "anarchists and law violators" who use social and economic problems as the excuse for violence. He opposes federal gun registration, but says "we will preserve to the states their rights to take such reasonable measures as they deem appropriate in this area."

Spending priorities

Wallace—Wallace says government funds that should go to help the aged, the blind and the handicapped and to national defense, have been going instead to "professional welfare bums who are looking for handouts and to countries who take our money and then spit on us." He says "an estimated $150 billion has gone to other countries and much of it has been misspent and misused... much of this money could be used to maintain our superiority in military defense, which would not only insure our security but would also provide more jobs and aid the economy of our nation."

Humphrey—"We have had no plans" for resource use, for setting priorities, for reaching goals. "I am proposing a national growth and development policy in which the Congress, in which state and local governments and the executive branch of government can start to concentrate their attention on where we ought to go five years from now."

McGovern—He would cut $32 billion from the Defense Department budget over three years by cutting the size of the armed forces from 2.5 million to 1.7 million persons; sharply cut buying new strategic weapons systems, reduce the strategic forces' "substantial overkill capacity" and cut aircraft carriers from 15 to six. He would require defense contractors to deposit one-eighth of their pretax profits with the government to help pay full-salary unemployment,

Public Notices

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Take notice that Portland Borough Council, Portland, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, will, on Monday, July 10, 1972, at 8:00 a.m. (EST) at the Borough Hall, Main Street, Portland, Pennsylvania, receive and open sealed bids and proposals for the removal and disposal of garbage, rubbish and ashes from private residences in the said Borough of Portland for the period beginning September 1, 1972 and ending August 31, 1973.

The successful bidder shall enter into a written contract with the Borough Council, which shall provide, inter alia, that collection shall be made twice a week, that the successful bidder shall make all garbage collections in leakproof, enclosed packer-type vehicles, that he shall be required to submit a performance bond in a sum equal to one year payments under the contract guaranteeing performance of the contract and shall comply with the provisions of the Borough Ordinances relating to the collection and disposal of refuse in the Borough of Portland.

A map defining the limits of the Borough of Portland is on file for inspection at the home of the undersigned at 259 Main Street, Portland, Pennsylvania. Copies of the proposed contract, Ordinance and bid form may be obtained from the undersigned upon payment of a $5.00 fee.

Certified check or bid bond for not less than 10 per cent of the amount of the bid must accompany each bid submitted. Portland Borough Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) Evaluate all situations carefully now. There could be some misleading factors. However, the highly intelligent, intuitive Aries should be quick to spot them.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) Tighten reins a bit to observe with more ease and surety where you are headed. No amount of words should dissuade you from principles, but do avoid stubbornness.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) Don't take a chance with precious assets; protect them in all possible ways. Be dispassionate in making decisions, selective in choosing goals.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) This can be a good day if you make no hasty decisions and avoid anxiety and mistrust. Experimentation, new devices should prove helpful.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) This is a good period for aggressive action. Aim for your objectives in a swift, sure manner! Have no qualms about trying the difficult; just make sure of what you are doing.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) Some things that seemed to be at a standstill can now be picked up, brightened, advanced. Avoid eccentricity in thought and action, however.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) This can be one of your most fruitful days in many, depending upon how you proceed, what values you esteem and how much of personal desire you are willing to forego in favor of really working at worthwhile activity.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) Without too much planetary help, you can still net top returns but, before acting, plan well, be sure of facts and details, and don't procrastinate.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) When matters are running smoothly, there is a tendency to bog down, grow inattentive. Be alert to this. Don't allow lethargy to dim ultimate objectives.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) You may face some situations you had not anticipated, but you can handle the day smartly if you use those many talents of yours, and also remain serene, confident.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) Good influences govern your endeavors now, but avoid impulsiveness. You can achieve much in your usual competent manner. Capitalize on your artistry.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) Certain associates may seem somewhat "edgy" now, but don't become involved. You might find yourself caught "in the middle" — to your detriment.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most artistic of all! Gemini — and that is saying a lot. Even if you should choose a business career, you will follow some form of art, either as a second vocation or an avocation. And the fields vary from music, writing, painting and designing to the theater. You love to travel and your affinity for beauty, color and symmetry is outstanding. You always see the best in persons and places and your tendency is to share your delightful observations with others. In fact, you incline to share everything with others since you are generous, almost to a fault. You are ingenious, too, and could even make a name for yourself through the invention of some form of highly useful gadgetry. Traits to curb: Impulsiveness and extravagance. Birthdate of: Mme. Schumann-Heink, opera singer; Edward Gerig, Norwegian composer; Edward, the "Black Prince" of Wales.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6, or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
